Dissertation On Latin Eating

MIAMI, Fla.—We were sitting in El Minerva, which is the favorite Spanish restaurant in town, eating Paella Valencia, which is seafood, chicken and yellow rice. The conversation was routine. The cafe was busy, as it has a right to be. Tourists have not discovered it, or are too calorie conscious to patronize it. The atmosphere is loud, relaxed, and homey with plenty of what the Latins call simpatico.

Maybe another reason the tourists don't give it a play is that it does not cater to the wine cult. There is simply red and white Spanish wine. There is no raising of glasses and bird-dog-like sniffing at them to discover the aroma. Nor do the waiters go through the ritual of pouring a smidgen in the host's glass for him to sip and pronounce a judgment. The waiter simply pours the wine.

We were guests of a local newsman. The talk was inevitably shop talk. Management was given a quick, routine cut-up, and then conversation got quickly around to the quality of newspapers, books and writers.

El Minerva

There was no warning at all that the scene quickly was to be transformed into low-grade Hemingway. Things were just like they always are in El Minerva. The tables were filled. The talk was loud and gay. The guests were busy eating great amounts of yellow rice and chicken, beef hash, Cuban style, or lobsters enchilada. It was at this moment that a visiting journalist entered and with great confidence pulled up a chair and joined us.

"Have you ever noticed and appreciated the great superiority of the Latin women as dinner companions?" he asked, fixing his eye on two rather buxom, pretty young women with escorts who were busy eating and talking at a nearby table.

"It's all in the point of view," ventured one of our number.

"Not at all," he said, firmly. "Look around you. A Latin woman is magnificent at the table. She breaks the bread and lets the crumbs fall on the cloth. She butters it generously. She throws back her head and laughs heartily when amused. She eats chicken and rice with appreciation. When the inevitable happens and she grows larger she has a very simple solution. She buys a larger size dress."

"American women," ventured the dissenter at our table, "are known for their ability to serve beautiful meals."

"They are," said the intruder, "and they do. They spend days preparing for a dinner with guests, and they worry about it. They get little menus out of women's magazines. They agonize over the place mats. They try to make salads out of gelatins and cottage cheese which look like the colored pictures in the women's magazines.

Guests

"And then the guests come. They can't eat bread or butter. They speak of calories. They do a soliloquy before taking or refusing a rye crisp. They are very formal and if they relax at all it is but slightly. Dessert is something made from a new mix which contains no taste save a metallic sweet flavor. The host explains it is made out of a soy-bean powder which has no calories at all. They are beautiful meals but they are not good to eat."

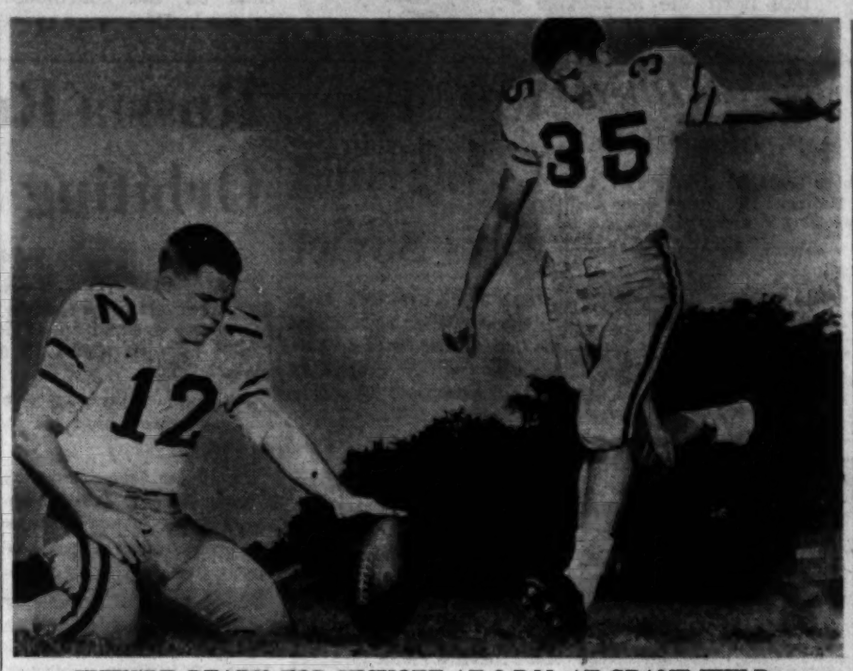

"Look at her," he said, pointing to a black-haired young woman of about 28 who looked like one of the young ladies in a painting by Reubens. "She is topping off fried beef and rice with strawberries and heavy cream. I tell you, when a Latin woman comes to the table she graces it magnificently. She eats. There is laughter and conversation.

"Only the Latin women," he repeated, "know how to grace a table at which eating is to be done. In fact," he said, "only the Latins and the Chinese really appreciate eating anyhow."

He abruptly turned his wrist and peered at his watch. "Got to go," he said. And did, forgetting to pick up his tab.

"That fellow, at least, has time to spend," said the gentleman who had protested the premise.

"Yes," said our host, "he spent a half hour of it with us."

THEY'RE READY FOR KICKOFF AT 2 P.M. AT GRANT FIELD

It's Georgia vs Tide, Kentucky at Tech

Georgia tackles rugged Alabama, and Georgia Tech faces Kentucky Saturday as King Football gets off to one of its biggest starts in Dixie.

You don't need a raccoon coat, not even a college pennant, to cheer Georgia. The Bulldogs' headliner against the Crimson Tide at Birmingham will be carried over national television (locally WLWA-TV) starting at 2:45 p.m.

By JACK WILLIAMS
Constitution Staff Writer

Tech, meanwhile, will unveil what Coach Bobby Dodd calls his "pass and pray offense" at Grant Field, starting at 2 p.m. This one is expected to attract a sellout crowd of more than 44,000.

SLIGHT FAVORITES

Both Georgia and Tech rule as favorites . . . but slim ones. Georgia, defending Southeastern Conference champion, is rated a one-point pick over Alabama while Tech has been installed a six-point favorite over Kentucky.

Experts are predicting that the Georgia-Alabama struggle will go a long way toward deciding the conference championship. Georgia used the game last year as a springboard to conference laurels when it toppled Alabama, 17-3.

A highlight of the opener in Atlanta will be the debut of Tech quarterback Stan Gann, perhaps the most ballyhooed athlete on The Flats in many years.

HOPES IN GANN

Coach Dodd frankly admits that he has restyled the Tech offense because of the presence of Gann. "We think he's got the spark that can make our team go," the coach said Friday. "Without a doubt, he's the best passer we've had in quite a while."

Tech will be risking a great home field winning tradition against Kentucky. Not since 1926, when Oglethorpe pulled a stunning 7-6 upset, have the Yellow Jackets lost a seasonal opener played in Atlanta.

Four other Southeastern Conference teams also swing into action Saturday. Florida plays host to George Washington, Tulane invades the University of California, Louisiana State entertains Texas A. and M. and league favorite Ole Miss plays at Houston.

Four SEC teams, Tennessee, Auburn, Mississippi State and Vanderbilt, will wait until next Saturday to begin their seasons.

Winds To Greet Football Fans; Rains Will End By Game Time

Overcast skies and 15 m.p.h. winds—but no rain—should greet Atlanta football fans as Georgia Tech launches the 1960 grid season at Grant Field Saturday afternoon, the weatherman said.

Showers will continue to pepper Atlanta Saturday morning but should end by noon, the forecaster said, saying that the same situation is expected to prevail in Birmingham where the University of Georgia kicks off against Alabama's Crimson Tide.

The mercury is slated to touch an 80 high Saturday after a morning low of 68. Extremes of 66 and 85 are expected Sunday.

Winds of 25-to-30 miles per hour whipped through Atlanta Friday as extremes of 66 and 77 were recorded. Neel Gap had heavy rain Friday with unofficial extremes of 41 and 53.

2 Crashes in Rain Kill 8 in Georgia

Five persons were killed in a head-on collision at Franklin Springs, near Royston, Friday night, and three persons were killed in another head-on wreck near Darien. Both crashes occurred during rainstorms, officers said.

The fatality toll of eight Friday night was the same as the number killed on public roads in Georgia during the long Labor Day weekend.

Killed in the Franklin Springs collision were Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Kay of Cornelia; Mrs. Bernice Johnson of Macon, Mrs. Barbara Allen of Macon and an unidentified child. Robin Allen and Curtis Johnson were injured. Curtis Johnson was critically injured.

The State Patrol said the crash occurred when the car in which Mrs. Johnson was riding attempted to pass a tractor-trailer truck on a straight stretch of road and slammed into the Kay car.

Mr. Kay was known to Georgia law enforcement officials as "Bub" Kay. In charge of the Cornelia bureau, he was a criminal investigator for the U.S. Treasury Department, Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division. He was a Mason and a native of South Carolina.

In the collision at Darien, the victims were two crewmen from the U. S. Navy submarine Spikefish, Charleston, C.S., and the daughter of a Columbus, Ohio, family who were in the other car.

They were identified as Chief Shannon O. Miller Jr., about 30, Fort Pierce, Fla., a steward from the submarine; Albert Love, about 35, and Miss Janet Ayers, about 20.

The State Patrol said one car apparently skidded into the path of the other, but until survivors can be questioned they were unable to give further details.

Injured were a submariner reported to be the driver of the Navy car, V. M. Barton, of Auburndale, Fla., and parents of the girl, Mr. and Mrs. Ben B. Ayres, Columbus, Ohio, and their son, Carl Ayers, 23, reported to be the driver.

The Ayers were returning north after a visit to Florida and the Navy men were on the way south to Florida on weekend leave.

Kennedy's Backers Remain Confident

By CHARLES MOORE

A top leader of the Kennedy-Johnson campaign in Georgia said Friday the "free" vs. "pledged" presidential electors straw vote in Wednesday's primary will have little effect in the general election.

"The straw vote did not change the law of Georgia," said campaign co-chairman Griffin Bell, pointing out that Georgia presidential electors, by law, already are free to vote for anyone.

Thus, he indicated, Georgia citizens were voting for either "free" free electors or "pledged" free electors.

Bell said that the only result that could have been expected from the straw vote would have been to "morally obligate" the electors to support Kennedy and Johnson if the vote had gone for "pledged" electors.

As it is, with the most votes going for free electors, the referendum will have little effect in the November election, Bell said at a press conference of campaign leaders.

In fact, he said "all the discussion" on the free and unpledged electors "helped the campaign." He predicted "all loyal

Reds Leaving Congo On Kasavubu's Orders As Lumumba Vanishes

U.S. Stands Firm on Congo, U.N.

By MILTON BESSER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States Friday ruled out any compromise with the Soviet Union over the issue of full support for Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold and the U. N. operation in the Congo.

This raised the prospect of a Soviet veto in the U. N. Security Council of a U. S. resolution expressing confidence in Hammarskjold and the convening of an emergency session of the full 82-nation General Assembly within 24 hours.

The dramatic turn came as the United Nations was preparing for its regular fall General Assembly which opens Tuesday. An emergency session could be under way late Saturday.

Sir Claude Corea of Ceylon and Ambassador Mongi Slim of Tunisia were still trying to work out some kind of compromise that might avoid calling an emergency session, but the prospect of success was admittedly dim.

Corea told the council that the United States and the Soviet Union had the same over-all objectives on the Congo, and appealed to both big powers to find a common approach.

But Ambassador James W. Barco, deputy U. S. representative, denied immediately this was so.

"Soviet statements, both in and

Judge to Rule On Electors Before Nov. 8

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

Judge Luther Alverson said Friday he will definitely rule on the constitutionality of Georgia's "unpledged electors" law before the Nov. 8 general election.

The Fulton Superior Court jurist said he will make his ruling "as quickly as I can" after all legal briefs have been submitted to him in the case. Briefs are due in by Sept. 26.

"I expect to rule on it before the general election," the judge explained.

The ruling will be made on a suit brought by Atlanta attorney Henry M. Henderson against the State Democratic Executive Committee in which he attacks the validity of the 1958 electors law.

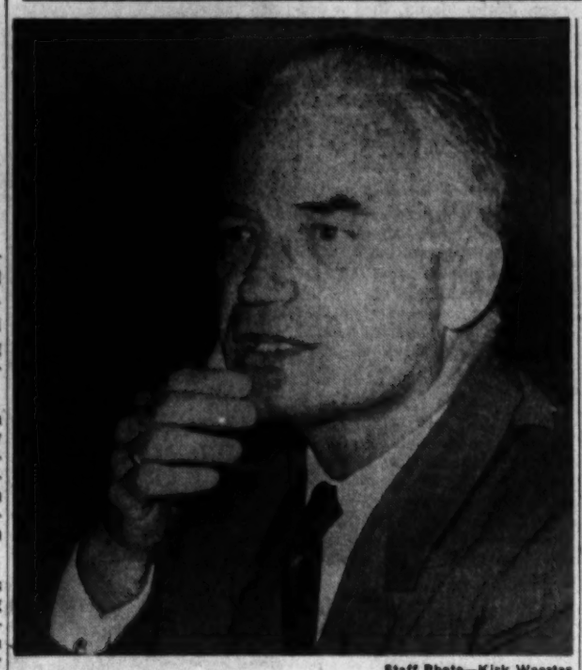

Should the judge uphold Henderson's contentions—and he has already said he has some "serious doubts" about the law's constitutionality—this would make a 1948 act the controlling one in the coming general election.

And this act requires that the

ARIZONA SENATOR PONDERS QUESTION
Sen. Goldwater at Breakfast in Rome

Goldwater Woos Rome's Democrats

By GENE BRITTON
Constitution Staff Writer

ROME—Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater, trail-boss of GOP conservatism galloped into Georgia Friday to rustle votes traditionally in the Democratic corral.

He invited Southern Democrats to step over into the Republican camp until they "get their own party back" from the hands of liberals who he said have abandoned the principles of Jefferson.

"You're not in the saddle (in the Democratic Party)," he said. "You're in the saddle-bag, folks."

$10 A PLATE

In a $10-a-plate, ham-and-eggs-and-grits breakfast in Rome's Coosa Country Club, Goldwater blasted away at Democrats from Franklin D. Roosevelt—"who didn't have the courage to rely on the Constitution"—to Jack Kennedy. The breakfast and the Goldwater appearance were held to kick off the Seventh District congressional campaign of Rome attorney E. Ralph Ivey, a Republican who is opposing Democratic-nominee John Davis of Summerville in the November election.

SEES NO LIBERALS

An estimated 500 Republicans and maverick Democrats attended.

Earlier, the senator told a news conference he approved the idea for realigning American party politics so that conservative Republicans, like himself, and conservative Democrats, like Georgia Senators Russell and Talmadge, would be in the same party.

He said he had discussed the idea several times with Sen. Russell and predicted, "We'll live to see a conservative party of Talmadges, Russells, Byrds (of Virginia) and Goldwaters in the same party, opposing a radical party—because there are no liberals running around any more."

Also at the news conference, Goldwater said he had been very much surprised at the vote in favor of unpledged Democratic

Burn Files For Quick Getaway

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Communist infiltrators burned documents and packed up Friday night in preparation for a dismal getaway from the Congo.

Their adventuring effort to exploit a foothold in central Africa appeared to be ending in failure.

Patrice Lumumba, the puppet they had been shaping up, had vanished, and the facade of Soviet power with him.

The Communists from Eastern Europe started their preparations to leave on renewed orders from the new Congolese army strong man, Col. Joseph Mobutu. He said they must clear out before another nightfall.

PACKING AT EMBASSY

Papers were burned in the courtyard of the Czech Embassy. Workmen then nailed covers on big wooden crates.

Three carloads of Soviet officials left the Soviet Embassy. Other cars loaded with suitcases stood in the courtyard.

"We are all leaving tomorrow," said a correspondent for the Soviet news agency Tass.

The correspondent said the Soviet Embassy had received a formal request to leave the country from President Joseph Kasavubu.

48 HOURS TO GO

Col. Mobutu Wednesday announced he was giving the Communist bloc 48 hours to leave the Congo. The first signs that they would obey came Friday night.

The Russians and their Communist allies had moved into the Congo in a big way after independence June 30. They poured in men and equipment outside the U. N. Congo effort, setting off

Police Find New Clues, Delaying Burge Trial

By MARION GAINES

The murder trial of Chester A. Burge was postponed in Bibb Superior Court Friday after the state asked for time to investigate "new developments" which authorities said may connect "other persons with Chester A. Burge in the murder of Mrs. Mary E. Burge."

Burge, a wealthy Macon realtor, had been scheduled to go on trial Monday on charges of strangling his 55-year-old wife last May 11 in an upstairs bedroom of their fashionable north Macon home.

Attorneys for Burge vigorously opposed the state's request for a continuance, which was granted by Bibb Superior Court Judge Oscar L. Long. The attorneys—Charles F. Adams, H. T. O'Neal Jr. and T. Arnold Jacobs—said:

"The prosecution should meet his (Burge's) demand for trial on Monday or release him from jail."

Bibb Sol. Gen. William M. West said that "developments in the past few days, and since the case was assigned for trial, make it (the delay) necessary . . ."

"These new developments strongly indicate," West said, "that the state will be able to connect other persons with Chester A. Burge" in the sensational slaying which shocked middle Georgians last spring.

Sol. West declined to elaborate

Part of Missing $240,000 Taken by Banker, FBI Says

The shortage uncovered at the Cook Banking Co. in Cochran now totals $240,000, the FBI reported Friday.

Investigators also have uncovered evidence that the bank's president, who recently disappeared, embezzled some of the missing money, according to C. E. Weeks, agent in charge of the FBI's Atlanta office.

First reports of the shortage, issued two weeks ago, indicated that the president, Taylor Cook, had falsified records only for depositors he allowed to overdraw. Cook was not charged with taking any of the money, but was charged with falsifying bank records.

By JACK NELSON

Weeks said the exact amount of the shortage will not be known until more records are checked. He said the case will be presented to a federal grand jury which convenes in Macon on Oct. 17.

"Accounts of some of Cook's relatives and of several other persons are involved," Weeks said. "Evidence shows Cook had not been giving proper credits to some of them for their deposits."

Cook, 49, disappeared on Aug. 23, leaving behind a note hinting suicide and a bank shortage.

Weeks and Bleckley County Sheriff Gus Giddens said Friday Cook "probably" is still alive.

"We still have no lead at all on him," Giddens said, "but I definitely think he's alive."

Giddens and several others in Cochran have described Cook as one of the most popular men in Bleckley County.

The Cochran Journal this week ran a page one editorial entitled "Tribute to Taylor Cook." "No single event in recent history has touched the people of this area as has the disappearance of this popular and beloved bank president," the newspaper declared.

The editorial quoted several

Soviet Jet at Berlin Nearly Hits Airliner

By JOSEPH B. FLEMING

BERLIN (UPI) — The captain of a British airliner said a Soviet jet fighter buzzed his plane and almost crashed into it Friday as he was nearing West Berlin with 36 passengers in defiance of Communist threats to Berlin's air links with the West.

Passengers described the incident as "a near miss." The pilot, Capt. James Martin, field a protest with the four-power Berlin air safety center as soon as he landed at West Berlin's Tempelhof Airfield.

The plane was on charter to carry passengers into and out of Berlin.

FOLLOWED WARNING

The new Communist harassment came only hours after Mayor Willy Brandt warned the Communists against interfering with air traffic to isolated West Berlin. He said he issued the warning to prevent the East from making a "false estimate" of the political situation.

"It should be recognized that whoever lays their hands on the air traffic to Berlin is playing with fire," he said in a speech in Frankfurt. His speech was believed prompted by Western fears the Soviet were considering harassing action in the three 20-mile wide air corridors across Communist East Germany.

The stage for such interference could have been set by Maj. Gen. N. F. Zaharov, Berlin's Soviet commandant, who told the Allies Tuesday they were "misusing" the air corridors in flying undesirable West Germans into Berlin. Pilots have reported unusual concentrations of Soviet aircraft along the routes.

THIRD BUZZING

The plane's pilot said he was flying passengers from Innsbruck, Austria, along the Frankfurt-Berlin corridor and was at an altitude of 4,500 feet over the Soviet zone when a Russian plane, making a tight turn to land at Zerbst Airfield veered toward his plane.

It was thought at first to be an accident, but Martin said it was a deliberate buzzing and that it was the third time a plane he was flying had been buzzed in recent weeks. Martin said he had been buzzed before but "today was too close for comfort."

"Next time I will travel to Berlin by bicycle," he said. "I really was shaken up."

U.S. Blonde Is Freed By Castro

HAVANA (AP) — An attractive blonde U.S. Embassy secretary was freed Friday night after being held 40 hours by Prime Minister Fidel Castro's military secret police. She was reported in good condition.

Her arrest had plunged already strained U.S.-Cuban relations to a new low. The United States made repeated protests over her seizure.

Marjorie Lennox, 26, a confidential secretary in the embassy, was arrested shortly after midnight Thursday and held incommunicado for hours.

Shortly before she was released Cuban authorities had said she was being held for "interference in Cuba's internal affairs."

After she was freed a U.S. Embassy spokesman declined to say whether formal charges had been filed against her. He said, however, further developments were expected in the case and left the impression that the Cuban government might have brought or may still bring espionage charges against her.

The spokesman said she was taken immediately from her place of detention in Cuban military intelligence headquarters to the suburban residence of the U.S. ambassador.

"She is resting," the spokesman added.

The ALA said it had rejected the idea of one long blast for "you jerk," and a series of short beeps for a pretty girl walking along the sidewalk.

Nixon Unveils Farm Plans; Kennedy Warns Khrushchev

By the Associated Press

Vice President Richard M. Nixon offered his remedy for farm ills Friday. Sen. John F. Kennedy blamed Republican policies for the steel industry's troubles. And the religious issue showed no sign of subsiding.

Speaking in Baltimore, Kennedy also warned bluntly that if Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev is coming to the United States in an effort to divide Americans in an election year, Khrushchev will find that those tactics won't work.

FARM SURPLUS

Nixon went on a 170-mile motorcade tour of the farm belt where the Republicans have lost ground in recent years. Troubles with hay fever made his voice husky but didn't slow his campaign pace.

As his solution to the nagging farm problem, the GOP presidential candidate unwrapped a four-point plan to trim price-depressing crop surpluses to manageable size in four years before a farm audience at a Guthrie Center, Iowa, fair.

FOOD ABROAD

Key points in this program: creation of a strategic food reserve for use in event of attack or other national emergency, and bigger shipments of surplus foods to feed the hungry abroad.

Estimated cost: between $500 million and $1 billion a year, less savings in smaller crop storage and other costs.

Speaking for the Democrats at Guthrie Center was Quentin N. Burdick, recently elected senator from normally Republican North Dakota.

Burdick said farmers are now $20 billion behind in net income since 1952 and that farm debt has doubled since the Eisenhower administration was elected and Ezra Taft Benson became secretary of agriculture.

Far to the east, Democratic presidential candidate Kennedy motored through Pennsylvania, with big and enthusiastic crowds turning out to see and hear him.

Kennedy said Pennsylvania, with its 32 electoral votes, could be the decisive state in the November election.

In this key steel-producing state the Democratic candidate said it's because of GOP policies that Pennsylvania steel mills are running at about half capacity.

"If the Soviets had destroyed half our steel industry, we'd think we'd been ruined," Kennedy said.

Winding up in Baltimore, Kennedy turned to foreign problems—with particular attention to the impending visit of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to the United Nations in New York.

As though speaking directly to the Soviet premier, Kennedy said: "Mr. Khrushchev, it has been suggested that your objective is to divide our country in the midst of our election. Let me say as emphatically as I can: Those tactics will not work."

Nixon's running mate, Henry Cabot Lodge, invaded Florida —another battleground state—after a sweep through Illinois. "We have a wonderful chance to carry Illinois," he told a Chicago news conference.

Lodge, who was U.S. ambassador to the United Nations before he was tapped by the Republicans for the vice-presidential nomination, said he has made a number of recommendations for strategy at the U.N. General Assembly meeting starting next week.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate, called a news conference in Washington and said Nixon should reject support of persons who use Kennedy's Roman Catholicism as a weapon against him.

"I think the time has come to blow the whistle on those folks who would subvert the Constitution and the Bill of Rights," Johnson said.

Johnson said he accepts Nixon's statement that "he does not want the religious issue injected."

In Oklahoma City, Democratic National Chairman Henry M Jackson said raising the religious issue has outraged people all over the country and thus, he said, helped Kennedy.

U.S. Stirs U.N. Feuds, Says Soviet

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet government Friday night blamed the United States for tensions rising over the U.N. General Assembly opening next Tuesday in New York.

In a note to Washington it also appealed to statemen of East and West to sink all personal ill-feeling in the interests of better relations.

The appeal followed Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's shipboard statement Friday that he is sure better times will come in relations between the Soviet Union and the United States.

RAPS RESTRICTIONS

The Soviet note was mainly a denunication of the restrictions the United States has imposed on Khrushchev's movements during his visit to the U.N. Assembly.

State Department officials in Washington indicated the ban confining him to Manhattan Island might be relaxed slightly to permit Khrushchev to visit Glen Cove, Long Island, if he specifically asks. The Soviet government rents a large estate at Glen Cove.

NOTE QUOTED

The note, as reported by the Soviet news agency Tass, said:

"The actions of the U.S. government are evidently prompted by the same motives which guided it when sending into Soviet air space the U2 plane which we shot down.

"The entire world recognizes that we acted correctly because the espionage flight of the American plane was a violation of the sovereignty of the Soviet Union."

REJECTS SAFETY ANGLE

The Soviet note rejected the U.S. argument that the restriction on Khrushchev was essential for his own safety—as set out in a U.S. note to the Soviet Union three days ago.

"The Soviet government cannot agree with your arguments in favor of the restrictions," the Soviet note said.

SENT FROM SHIP

"The United States evidently continues to adhere to the same hostile positions as it held on the eve of the four-power summit meeting in Paris, seeking to wreck the meeting or to create. . . such conditions as would exclude the possibility of useful results."

Khrushchev expressed his confidence of an improvement in relations between Moscow and Washington in a message from the vessel Baltika carrying him to New York. The message was in answer to an invitation from the forum of the Harvard University Law School asking the Soviet premier to give a lecture before the forum.

Russia Rumored Orbiting Spaceman

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—New details on deployment of half a dozen Soviet ships on two sides of the world increased speculation Friday night that the Soviet Union may be about to attempt another spectacular space effort.

One possibility: sending up a man in a space capsule and recovering it.

If so, it would come on the eve of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's arrival in New York for the United Nations General Assembly.

Information made available by the Navy indicates that two of the ships, the tanker Kokand and the fleet tug Fedotov, are standing off the Grand Banks in the Atlantic, on the northeast approaches to the United States.

In the Pacific, four Soviet instrument ships are strung out several hundred miles apart along a line of about 1,500 miles. The line runs from northwest to southeast, with the southeast end about 500 miles southwest of Oahu in the Hawaiian group. It follows the patht aken by past Soviet rockets fired into the Pacific.

The positioning of the two groups of ships led to this speculation: The Soviet Union may be attempting a new satellite launching, with the space vehicle possibly containing a man-bearing capsule.

on the "new developments," nor would Macon Detective Chief W. H. Bargeron. West said the investigation "is already in progress" but was unable to estimate when the case might be ready for trial.

The blistering statement issued by Burge's attorneys declared that "when this investigation is complete, the prosecution will know what we have been telling them for over four months: That Chester Burge was in the Macon hospital when Mrs. Burge was killed, and we can prove it."

Throughout the investigation, which has taken a number of unusual twists and turns, the 56-year-old Burge hasn't deviated from his contention that he was in the hospital recuperating from double-hernia surgery on the night his wife was killed.

electors in Wednesday's referendum.

He said the last time "I talked to both of your senators they didn't think it (defeat of the proposal for electors morally pledged to the Democratic ticket) would happen."

That's more than either Talmadge or Russell have said publicly. Both of them have refused to discuss the electors issue with reporters.

He also said Democratic vice presidential nominee Lyndon Johnson, senator from Texas, "is having trouble at home."

"He might not even be senator again—I know he won't be vice president," Goldwater declared.

Goldwater charged Texans feel Sen. Johnson double-crossed them because "he thinks more of getting somewhere than of the principle his state believes in."

In his breakfast address, he singled Johnson out for extra heavy fire. He said the Texan's voting record in the Senate "is even left of Kennedy's—and that's hard to beat."

Goldwater admitted he could not agree with the Republican ticket in all respects, but he said he disagreed "with Kennedy more than 100 per cent of the time."

The predominant feeling in the Republican Party, he said, is for the preservation of states' rights and the Constitution.

Goldwater predicted great GOP strides into the South in November. Mississippi, South Carolina and Georgia are somewhat in doubt, but he added he thinks the rest of the South will go Republican. He said he has been greatly encouraged in Georgia and South Carolina.

He said he thought Ivey stood "an excellent chance" of winning the Seventh District congressional race.

sharp disputes with Western nations and the United Nations.

The collapse of the Communist venture came as Mobutu moved swiftly to consolidate his power.

Congolese troops arrested 20 members o fLumumba's personal staff at his luxurious villa, and there were reports that the disputed pemier himself had been nabbed at a hideout in town.

Roundabout reports received in Europe indicated Lumumba may have fled the Congo, but there was no confirmation. The Belgian radio said Lumumba had left his residence in Leopoldville under protection of U. N. Guinean soldiers. The Brussels report said he was taken to a hiding place but gave no other details. It attributed its information to military sources in Leopoldville.

Mobutu, the young army staff chief whose star is rising as Lumumba's fades, staged a dramatic show of force with the arrests. His soldiers also banned a scheduled meeting of Parliament, which has been inclined to string along with Lumumba.

A company of grim-looking Negro infantrymen made the raid on the villa, with rifles cocked.

U.N. Ghana soldiers on guard duty there stood by idly.

The Congolese raiders rounded up all the staff they could find. The Lumumba men emerged sullenly, but offered no resistance. They were herded into a truck and driven away, presumably to Camp Leopold II.

That is the military base on Leopoldville's outskirts where Lumumba narrowly escaped lynching Thursday by Congolese soldiers infuriated over reports of kinsmen massacred in Lumumba's recently halted war against secession-minded Baluba tribesmen in Kasai Province.

President Joseph Kasavubu protested to the United Nations that the Ghana soldiers who sheltered Lumumba in their officers' mess building had prevented service of a warrant he issued for Lumumba's arrest. The president declared this was interference in the Congo's internal affairs.

Soldiers loyal to Kasavubu in fact arrested the Communist-backed nationalist leader for a couple of hours last Monday, but he talked his way out of it.

Mobutu, 29, had put teeth in his Wednesday proclamation that the army was taking over for the rest of the year to oust the Communists and run the government with Western technical help.

The main aim of Friday's arrests was believed to be to prevent the Lumumba group from escaping to Stanleyville, 800 miles northeast of the capital. Stanleyville is the Congo River city where Lumumba—twice sentenced there to prison while the Congo was a Belgian colony—claims his strongest support.

Many of the pro-Lumumba senators and deputies talked of going to Stanleyville to hold a rump session of the suspended Parliament. Mobutu's men kept watch on airport traffic.

Barring of the Parliament meeting annoyed a lot of the legislators, for President Kasavubu himself had summoned them with an announcement that they were to hear an important declaration. He didn't say what it would be about

When the deputies and senators arrived they found Mobutu's soldiers barring all access.

Astronauts Await Big Day

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — America's seven Mercury astronauts are ready, eager and supremely confident as the day approaches for one of them to spin into space. Each of them wants to be first.

When will that day be?

"Early in 1961," answered Scott Carpenter, 35, Friday as he and his fellow spaceman trainees showed newsmen around the National Aeronautics and Space Administration control building that will be the nerve center when one of them blasts off on his great adventure.

The first manned shot, using a Redstone booster, will send the astronaut on a ballistic trajectory 120 miles up and about 200 miles down the Atlantic missile range. An attempt to orbit a manned capsule with an Atlas booster will follow late next year.

All the astronauts are hopeful the United States will put a man in space before the Russians do. None speculated on which country will win this race.

But Col. John Powers, Project Mercury public affairs director, commented: "We know the Russians are working toward such a goal. They have the rockets and we know they have an extensive program of aeromedical research. They put the dog Laika into orbit before we even started Project Mercury."

Astronaut Leroy Cooper, 32, summed up the reason why each wants to be the first to ride a rocket.

"It's a tremendous challenge," Cooper said. "And the most severe challenge is facing the man who goes first. I signed up for this challenge and want to be the first."

Virgil I. Grissom, 33, presented the over-all feelings of the astronauts toward the program.

"The most important thing is to get the job done and to get it done right. To get it done right, we've got to put the most qualified man up first," he said.

Asked if the astronauts would be prepared to go today if a rocket and capsule were ready, John H. Glenn, at 38 the oldest of the group, replied: "You're darn right we are. We're anxious to get the tin can off the ground."

Alan B. Shephard Jr., 36, added: "We're ready and confident, even if some people think we're risking our lives, our health and even our sanity."

"The training has been thorough and is continuing," reported Donald K. Slayton, 35. "Each of us is assigned a system or subsystem of the Mercury vehicle. My specialty, for example, is the Atlas booster. In this way, specialized knowledge is obtained by each of us which is passed on to the whole group in a series of meetings."

"But we'll not know until we actually get up there whether man can really perform useful tasks during space flight," said Walter Schirra Jr., 36. "That's the main purpose of the program—setting guidelines for future interplanetary travel."

Mr. Smith and Mr. Bell Declare

Griffin Bell and George Smith are the co-pushers of the Kennedy campaign in Georgia. Gov. Ernest Vandiver, their friend, asked them to be.

They the governor called a referendum that left Mr. Smith and Mr. Bell co-pushing an empty wheelbarrow. The people voted authority for the Democratic electors to withhold Georgia's vote from the candidate they are promoting.

Exactly what this leaves Mr. Smith and Mr. Bell co-pushing is unclear.

They announced Friday they do aim to defeat the Republican electors in November.

But did they say they aim to elect John F. Kennedy, of whose campaign they are co-chairmen? Well, not exactly.

What they said was, if the Republican electors can be defeated, that will mean somebody else's electors will be elected, and whomever these electors are for, it will be up to them to cast Georgia's vote "in a way that will serve and protect the best interest of their state."

This forthright statement falls a little short of clarity. The co-chairmen of the Kennedy campaign in Georgia seem to have dropped Kennedy from their campaign.

"Lest there be speculation, we are certain that no Democratic elector will cast his vote for the Republicans," they said.

Everybody clear?

"We are glad that Gov. Vandiver afforded the people of Georgia the opportunity to make their voices heard," Mr. Smith and Mr. Bell concluded.

We'll bet.

General Assembly Erred On the Cherokee Rose

The Cherokee rose is native to China and doesn't grow well anywhere in Georgia, according to Paul Tabor in the fall issue of the Georgia Review.

In 1916 the General Assembly made it the state flower.

The next year the assembly passed the Neil Primary Act.

Foundation of Republic Is Still the Constitution

Today is Constitution Day. On Sept. 17, 1787, delegates to the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia adjourned after four months of deliberations with a document which was to become the Constitution of the United States.

All the delegates were not happy and many were anxious lest it be turned down by the states. Yet the old, loose confederation had proved unworkable and in the 12th year of independence they knew that some system of central government must be devised or the union of states would fall apart.

In its final form the document was the work of many people but primarily it bore the stamp of James Madison, one of the great political scientists and scholars of all time.

Madison despised tyranny in any form, He distrusted the people as much as government. He feared tyranny by the majority and by minorities and the power of opposing economic groups. His idea was to protect all with government serving as referee. Thus was born the Swiss-watch concept of checks and balances to protect the people from themselves.

Today, 173 years later, that document still is debated but it stands as the fundamental law of 180 million Americans. It is the oldest republican constitution in the world. Its fundamental soundness is proved by the fact that it has been amended only 22 times and only 12 times since 1791.

On this anniversary, let us reflect upon this document and the freedoms it still guarantees for us all.

Machine Age Is Due At Cobb County Polls

Politics is an inexact science but one thing was proved beyond a shadow of a doubt so far as Cobb County is concerned in this week's primary.

The county has grown and interest in politics is too great to permit the delay that accompanies balloting by hand.

It took 246 workers, about $15,000, and 22 hours to tally the votes.

In addition, it was estimated that between 500 to 1,000 citizens who wanted to vote did not get to do so because of the long lines.

L. W. Awtrey Jr., secretary of the Democratic Executive Committee, is right in insisting that Cobb turn to the machine method of voting. Besides being quicker, it is more accurate than the old way.

Cobb is a front runner in the mechanical age, with Lockheed as the shining example. The time has arrived to switch from pencils to machines at the polls.

Gwinnett Faces Future With Better Tax Base

Gwinnett is the newest Georgia county to complete a program of reappraisal of property for tax purposes. One immediate result is a drop in the millage rate from 59.8 to 36 mills.

As a result of revaluation, county property is now valued at 88 million dollars, Commission Chairman W. A. Elinburg points out. Based upon 40 per cent of the total property valuation, the new tax digest is $35,364,000. This is more than double the old digest.

According to Dr. Elinburg, the people as a whole are pleased with the reappraisal which was accomplished by experts during an 17-month study. They found inequities in the old digest to be even greater than anticipated.

The county now looks forward to a program of continued growth and progress. This includes attracting new industry. "We hope to have all the schools, recreational facilities and other things industry is looking for, including an attractive tax rate."

Gwinnett, along with the other progressive Georgia counties that have already taken this needed step, deserves commendation. Effects of the reappraisal program will be watched with interest.

Sen. Goldwater May Be Reaching Rather Far

We would caution Sen. Barry Goldwater and Columnist William S. White alike not to misread the result of Georgia's elector referendum.

Mr. White's column on this page contains some reasoned judgment but we cannot agree with his conclusion that the Democratic ticket has suffered a "heavy blow." More accurately, it has taken a kick in the shins. Neither do we find much evidence of a repudiation of Gov. Vandiver's position, which he mentions, principally because the governor never took a solid enough position to be repudiated.

As for Sen. Goldwater, his judgment, expressed at Rome, that Franklin D. Roosevelt "didn't have the courage to rely on the Constitution" reaches rather far. A lot of Georgia Democratics who are tempted to go Republican are not yet ready to go as Republican as that.

Abuse of Public Office Is Answered at Polls

No matter how much power men in political office develop, no matter how they may prosper and consolidate their positions, ultimately they must submit to the equalizing test of the vote.

The test at election time is not what a man's opponent thinks of him, not what he thinks of himself, but what the plain people of the state, the people he is sworn to serve, think.

For awhile people will wink. But abuse of office is abuse of the people, themselves. Soon they react.

Wednesday's election proved that in more than one instance.

Ask Cheney Griffin.

Football Season Starts With Thrillers on Tap

College football makes its debut today and the coming-out parties promise to be humdingers.

Georgians will be especially interested in the Tech-Kentucky fracas at Grant Field and the Georgia-Alabama battle at Birmingham.

The Techs, who have played a conservative brand of football in recent years, now believe they have the guns—especially in the form of Stan Gann—to return to the wide-open game. Perhaps fans will be treated to some of the old razzle-dazzle type of play that proved so thrilling in years gone by. At any rate, all foes on the schedule had best look out for Tech as capable of clobbering them.

Georgia, defending champions of the Southeastern Conference, will play before some 37,000 fans at Birmingham and millions huddled over television sets. With Francis Tarkenton at the throttle, the Bulldogs will be as dangerous as a coiled rattlesnake. This team has a reputation to maintain and it will be out to do so.

The opening games of both Tech and Georgia should be exciting affairs and here's hoping that both do in their foes.

Dawning Dries Away the Dew

The Atlanta Constitution is pleased this morning with The Atlanta Journal. We have always found The Journal to be a well-meaning newspaper. We now find it is receptive, in the long run, to enlightenment.

Being in Rome, The Journal will no longer try to call us Romians. It has abandoned its Spartan (formerly Spartian) effort to describe residents of Atlanta as Atlantians.

Henceforth, we understand, The Journal will follow the lead of The Constitution—a lead unswerving through the years—and adopt the correct word, Atlantan.

In this age of uncertainty, we feel Atlantans generally will share our sense of pleasure to have one nagging doubt removed. If one stops to think of it, the people of this city have never before known really what they are.

Only a dogged nature, for which The Constitution must confess a certain admiration, could have led The Journal to persist this long in its laborious construction — the triple-jointed, swaybacked "Atlantian."

Journal justifications have dampened Dixie like the dew. Frank Daniel recalls the vivid words of The Journal's William Cole Jones, who said quite properly the form ought to be one of "intuitive taste rather than compelling logic." He chose "Atlantian."

But The Constitution's intuitive taste compelled it to "Atlantan" from the first, for here is delicate tracery, a fragile hint of beauty, a strength suggested but not thrust upon the ear of others by the insecure. "Atlantian" was just a little obvious: It was a forward wink, not a maidenly glance.

Nevertheless Mr. Jones ably argued that "Atlantian" contained "lilt and light and color." One notes he shrewdly claimed the very virtues that "Atlantan" possessed. "If we err in printing Atlantian," Mr. Jones went on, "what shall be said of 'Plutonian shore,' or 'Elysian Fields'? What of the Merovingian dynasty and the Etonian tradition? What of Draconian, Ciceronian, Baconian, Gladstonian and Wilsonian, not to mention Carthaginian, Athenian and Carolinian?"

The reader will see how such dogged virtuosity compelled our admiration. We never quite felt it sporting to engage in counter-justification, and certainly this is not the time to dwell upon the Lenten season and the Augustan age, Elizabethan drama and the Mohammedan faith, much less the Mayan tribe, the Cretan and Etruscan civilizations, or even, for that matter, the American people.

Rather this is a time for magnanimity. We confess we felt at times that The Journal clung to a bad thing simply to cast doubt upon the accuracy of The Constitution's good usage. Having entertained such a suspicion, we wish to be the first to say it takes a big man, and a bigger newspaper, to confess a wrong as The Journal has manfully done at last.

The Constitution feels no twinge of triumph. We hope we too are much too big for that. Rather we feel a deep satisfaction to see all Atlantans, everywhere, well served.

To The Journal, though it has wandered, we say welcome to the fold. Atlantans have not lost an i; they have gained a prodigal son.

Kennedy Jolted By Georgia Vote

WASHINGTON—The Kennedy-Johnson Democratic presidential ticket is now taking a clear turn toward a relatively more conservative position, but it may be too late a turn—in the South and Border States, anyhow.

Extremely bad news for the Democrats, for example, has just come from Georgia, a state never in modern history carried by a Republican presidential candidate and a state which, above all others in the South, the Democrats had believed to be safe for November.

Against the universal expectation of the professional politicians, Georgia Democrats have turned in an advisory vote favoring unpledged electors rather than electors committed to the Democratic ticket.

This does not necessarily mean the final loss of Georgia to Sens. Kennedy and Johnson. But it is a heavy blow, at the very least. If they should go on to carry the state in November, a majority of the electors no doubt would still cast most of the state's electoral vote for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket. For most of the electors already had endorsed that ticket.

What the Georgia Democrats have done, in short, is this: They have said they do not wish to see Kennedy and Johnson automatically take Georgia's electoral vote, even if they win the popular vote in November. They have not said they would automatically prefer the Republican ticket.

They have only said that they want to see the state's electoral vote withheld altogether. This is in the hope that, in the highly unlikely event of a national tie for the presidency, Georgia would be in position to bargain.

Now, this sort of thing almost certainly will not happen. But what will surely happen is this: The Georgia staw vote—which already means the repudiation of Gov. Vandiver as a pro-Kennedy man—will put fear into every Democratic leader in that state, and all over the South.

Georgia's two senators, Richard Russell and Herman Talmadge, had been awaiting the straw vote in the expectation that it would give them a mandate to back Kennedy and Johnson. The mandate has not come, and the lesson will be read among other powerful Southern politicians.

In the meantime, both Kennedy and Johnson, as had been forecast recently in this column, had already begun to move a bit away from the Democratic left wing.

The point needs underlining again: The Democrats would be in trouble in the South, and among moderate-to-conservative Democrats everywhere, if Kennedy's Catholic religion had never been raised against him and if civil rights had never been heard of.

Choices You Make Channel Your Life

Hardly a day passes in which we are not required to make a decision of some sort. Many of these decisions are not of far-reaching importance. But some decisions do determine the tenor of our lives for as many years as we may live.

When we make choices concerning the work or profession we shall enter, the person we shall marry or the community in which we shall live, we are determining considerably the course which the rivers of our lives shall follow for many years.

A good many of us do not like to make decisions. We procrastinate. The decisions which we resist with greatest force are those which consist of alternatives, none of which are to our liking. A woman was told by her physician that she could not gain good health if she did not submit to an operation but she was also told that the operation was hazardous and might not be successful. What should she do?

Apparently many American voters do not know for whom they should cast their ballots in November. They have unanswered questions in their minds regarding both candidates and they perhaps can detect commendable qualities in both candidates. They may envy somewhat the party-line voter who has always voted for his party's ticket no matter who the candidate may be. But there are voters who are not committed to a party-line. They vote for a man and not for a party, and they are hard-pressed to make a wise decision. What should they do?

Long centuries ago, David was given the opportunity to make a choice. He was given three alternatives and each was fraught with danger. David had ordered that a census of his people be made. Perhaps the census was taken so that David might proudly point to the many persons who came under his rule. Perhaps David wanted to know how many persons he might tax or conscript into his armies. At any rate, God was displeased and it became necessary for David to prove himself repentant. So God sent the prophet to David.

The prophet told David that he must choose either three years of famine, three months of flight while his enemies pursued him, or three days of pestilence. David chose the pestilence and the results were catastrophic.

We may feel as David felt when he made his fatal choice. But choose we must. In our daily lives such choices are always awaiting our decision. We may choose blindly or we may choose thoughtfully and prayerfully. We cannot shrug off our responsibilities.

Gen. Pershing Was an Outstanding Figure, Says Georgian Who Soldiered With Him

Rome—I am taking this means to thank Celestine Sibley for her fine column of Sept. 12 re Gen. John J. Pershing (Black Jack Pershing to us old soldiers). I am happy to know someone does know some of the problems and the undisclosed facts about him.

I happened to soldier with him on the Mexican Border when we were chasing the so elusive Villa, the "Bandit of the Border." I was also under his command in World War I. The general holds a very special niche in my memories. I rate him as an outstanding figure in American history, an officer and a gentleman.

'Consider Kennedy As a Total Person'

Holly Springs, Ga.—You stated that you had no prejudice concerning the religion of Sen. Kennedy. Sen. Kennedy will not dictate to his church his conditions of membership, but will be subject to her totalitarian demands, regardless of position. The arguments of those who oppose the doctrines of the Roman Catholic cannot be destroyed by name-calling nor by just passing over them as mere suppositions. Until you can prove some of your own suppositions, wouldn't it be a wiser policy to refrain from accusing others?

Just recently Cardinal Cushing said that Sen. Kennedy was subject only to his conscience. A few months ago Auxiliary Bishop Hodges of Richmond, Virginia, stated in a Richmond newspaper that the conscience of the Roman Catholic is subject to his church.

In the light of such demands of the Roman Catholic Church upon its members, you would ask Protestant Christians to dissassociate the religion of Sen. Kennedy from the man. This is impossible. If the man is to be taken as a serious candidate, he must be considered as a total person.

CLYDE D. NUCKOLS, Pastor, Holly Springs Methodist Circuit.

'Church Can't Afford To Remain Aloof'

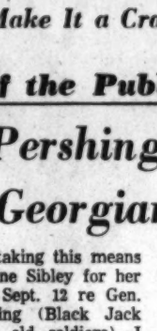

Atlanta — The race problem in America is said to be spiritual rather than physical. If the dignity of man is historically a religious and moral concept why all the mechanical panaceas to try to solve this conflict? Education's new meaning, pursuit of truth in science, moves us no closer to the moral law.

Where moral issues are concerned no church can afford to remain aloof or tolerant, no matter what the political involvement.

'B' Is There And Very Busy

That teasing little fellow Typographical Error got into the remarks about the letters missing on the phone dial and changed the "Z" to "B." Of course, the "B" is there. "B" for Butler, "B" for Busy, "B" for just plain buzz. But no "Z." That is what I meant to say. As for the highest point in Atlanta, Virgil Hartley called to report the contour map shows Peachtree at Davison's as 1,070 ft. above sea level. He says a site two blocks north of the Lee Street School and one at Stewart and Whitehall are each marked 1,060. DRESS RIGHT. A wife told her husband right suddenly the other evening when the weather had turned brisk, he needed a new winter suit.

"No, I don't need a new winter suit," he protested.

She insisted, saying that the old winter suit was shabby and besides strictly out of keeping with the 1960 cut of clothes.

Finally he gave in and said, "O. K., so I need a new suit. Well, I may get one."

When he came home the next night, she showed him a new dress she had bought that day.

"A new dress!" he reacted, naturally. "How come a new dress?"

"Why not?" she answered in righteous indignation. "You're getting a new suit, aren't you?"

Uniquack Views The Campaign

WASHINGTON—A meeting of the Society for the Exposure of Political Nonsense. Subject: Politics. Chairman: The electronic truth-detector, Uniquack. Question: Who's ahead, machine? Uniquack: Kennedy, Lumumba and the Baltimore Orioles.

Q—How do you know?

A—Kennedy is picking up the anti-preacher vote, which is very large. Lumumba is the greatest escape artist since Houdini and the Orioles have the pitching, which counts at the end.

Q—So you expect Kennedy to win?

A—I didn't say that. He may not win at all.

Q—Why not?

A—Khrushchev.

Q—Don't be obscure, machine. Explain what you mean.

A—Kennedy's main argument is that Eisenhower has botched up American foreign policy. Right?

And he has gone around the country saying our prestige is declining, our power is declining, we are clumsy and losing out to the Communists who are now establishing themselves in Africa, Latin America and Cuba. Right?

Q—Okay, go on.

A—So in the middle of this argument with Nixon over whether we are losing or gaining, along comes Khrushchev.

Q—What does Naughty Nik have to do with it?

A—Everything. He arrives and starts criticizing Eisenhower, too.

Q—I'm beginning to get it.

A—Mr. Nixon says it is perfectly dreadful for Mr. Khrushchev to talk about President Eisenhower like that. He says that Mr. Eisenhower is a wonderful man, which is true, and that Mr. Eisenhower is a man of peace, which is also true, and that Mr. Eisenhower has got us out of one war and kept us out of 17 more. And isn't it terrible, he asks, that at a time like this some Democrats, including one who is actually seeking the presidency, are also attacking President Eisenhower just when he needs support?

Q—You mean that Khrushchev neutralizes Kennedy's main argument.

A—He does more than that. He enables Nixon to emerge as the champion and protector of Eisenhower, who is popular, and puts Kennedy in the position of seeming in some ways to side with Khrushchev, who is unpopular.

Q—Can't anything be done about this?

A—Well, we could have a period of silence in the campaign until Khrushchev leaves and the world series is over.

Q—Good idea. Anything else?

A—Well, of course, there is the case of the Mary Celeste. In the fall of 1872 that famous half-brig, you will remember, sailed from New York under Capt. Benjamin Spooner Briggs. It was later found sailing along under full sail between the Azores and the coast of Portugal with not a soul aboard. No evidence of foul play, all shipshape and undamaged, her galley fire still warm, food on the stove, fresh water galore, wash hung out to dry in the fo'c's'le, a half-finished meal on the table, all lifeboats untouched but not a sign of human life. Even now, nobody knows what happened.

Q—Very interesting. Gentlemen, let us call Adm. Rickover.

Never Gave Away Stocks, Orkin Says

Asks $60,000 Tax Refund, Denies Gift to 3 Children

Pest exterminator Otto Orkin has charged in a federal tax claim that one of his sons filed a gift tax return for him listing stock gifts which Orkin says he never made.

Involved in the case are 6,705 shares of Class A stock which the multi-millionnaire pest control king says would give the majority of voting stock in the national firm to his two sons and a daughter.

Orkin, in a refund claim filed late Wednesday with the U. S. Treasury Department here, asked for the refund of $60,561.03 in taxes, plus $617.23 in interest.

The same shares of stock were an issue in a Fulton County lunacy commission hearing in which Orkin was declared to be sane. Orkin is seeking in a $5 million damage suit to have the stock returned to him.

In a statement of explanation filed with the refund claim, the elder Orkin—founder and organizer of Orkin Exterminating Co., Inc.—declared that he has at all times sought to maintain voting control of the corporation by retaining ownership of more than 50 per cent of the 160,000 shares of outstanding voting stock.

Orkin "has never knowingly or intentionally made gifts of shares of his Class A stock which would reduce his holdings" to less than 50 per cent, the explanation said.

The "purported return" filed by Sanford H. Orkin "incorrectly and falsely lists" stock gifts during 1959 to Bernice Orkin Kaye, William B. Orkin and Sanford Orkin, the explanation said.

All three are defendants in the pending damage suit.

"Based upon the purported return in question taxpayer would have owned . . . 74,943 shares of Class A voting stock, representing 46.2 per cent of such stock," the explanation pointed out.

Couple Injured As Motorcycle, Car Collide

A man and a woman on a motorcycle were seriously injured late Friday in a collision with an automobile in the 2500 block of Jonesboro Road, SE, police said.

Charles R. Carr, 23, of 2520 Jonesboro Rd., SE, and Miss Joyce West, 19, of 532 Baker St., were admitted to Grady Hospital with leg injuries and other injuries Patrolman E. A. Samples said.

Samples said the motorcycle ridden by Carr and Miss West collided with an auto driven by Charles T. Randall, 28, of 29 Stillman St., SE. He said Randall was charged with driving on the wrong side of the street, leaving the scene of an accident and drunk on the street after an accident.

Sod Turned For Motel At Airport

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held Friday for a new 150-room motel to be built on the Atlanta Airport grounds.

The multi-storied ultra-contemporary structure, to be known as the Atlanta Airport Inn, is expected to be completed and in operation by mid-1961. It is a joint venture of Julius Epstein of Chicago and Futterman Corp. of New York.

Located on a six-acre tract, the motel will include an octagon-shaped activities building, housing two restaurants and a number of conference rooms. It will also have an Executives Club, a private membership club for businessmen of this area.

Rooms will be built around a quadrangle featuring a large swimming pool with underwater night-lighting. Ground-level lanai rooms will open on the pool terrace. A combination club room and lounge will be for the use of airline hostesses.

Designed by A. Epstein and Sons, Chicago architects, the inn has adjoining property for a planned future additional unit of 150 rooms. The inn will provide special small buses for transportation to and from the terminal.

No cost figures were announced, but spokesmen for the builders said the inn will be comparable to those in other sections of the country which have cost between $3 and $5 million. C. DeWitt Coffman, vice president of the Futterman Corp., said the corporation has other hotel properties in Arlington, Va., Lansing, Mich., Norfolk and Washington. He said that "several other new projects and acquisitions will be announced in the near future."

Grice Claims Vote Victory By 18 Units

Incomplete and unofficial returns in the slow-to-be-counted State Supreme Court race Friday night found supporters of Benning M. Grice voicing confidence of victory and backers of Vance Custer contending it's still a "nip-and-tuck" contest.

Both Grice, of Macon, and Custer, of Bainbridge, apparently had far outdistanced two others—Civil Judge A. L. Henson of Atlanta and Frank B. Stow of Gainesville—in the statewide race for the high-court bench. A plurality wins.

Although preliminary tabulations from some 500 of the state's 1,826 precincts were still unreported, Grice campaign aide Ed S. Sell Jr. said at Macon Friday night that "our canvass" (of unreported counties) "has indicated Benning Grice would have 174 unit votes; Mr. Custer, 156; Mr. Stow, 62, and Mr. Henson, 18."

At Bainbridge, a spokesman for Custer said the Grice canvass "doesn't exactly tally with what we've found." Declaring the results that far "are not conclusive," he said it's a "nip-and-tuck" race that won't be definitely decided until the official vote is certified.

Rome Blast Rocks Non-Striker Home

ROME — An early-morning dynamite explosion Friday rocked the home of a Fox Manufacturing Co. employe who crossed picket lines of strikers to help keep the plant in operation.

The employe, H. C. Langford, was at home with his wife and four teen-age children when a stick of dynamite was tossed onto their front yard from a speeding automobile.

The explosion was dangerously close to an underground gas storage tank, officers said.

Langford, a foreman whose job requires him to be at work during the strike, said he was standing in his yard with a shotgun when the dynamite was thrown from a car carrying five or six men. He fired at the automobile, he said, but did not know if he hit his mark.

Police quoted Langford as saying his family had been harassed by a number of late-hour anonymous telephone calls since the Fox furniture plant went on strike Aug. 31.

Police Bribe Charged To 2 at Valdosta

VALDOSTA—A Valdostan, twice convicted of lottery charges, and a former high school football star have been arrested on accusations of bribing a police employe. Police said Victor Findley, former Valdosta halfback, offered a department employe money to turn over to him lottery tickets confiscated when Walden Clary was arrested in July. Clary was charged along with Findley in the bribery case.

2 Youths Are Fined In Shotgun Incident

COLUMBUS — Two youths, charged by police in the firing of a sawed-off shotgun in the city, were fined $250 or given 90 days in jail here Friday. The maximum fines were handed to Richard Harrell, 17, and Charles Allen, 19, who told the court he obtained the weapon from City Comissioner C. Ed Berry. Federal agents, investigating the case, said possessing a shotgun with a barrel less than 18 inches in length carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison. The gun in Allen's possession has a seven-inch barrel, police said.

Spotter Planes Bag 64 Dove-Hunters

Wildlife rangers guided by plane spotters arrested 64 hunters Thursday—first day of the 1960 dove season — and the Game and Fish Commission warned strict enforcement will continue.

The season started at noon. Surprisingly, officials said, not a single hunter was caught shooting before the deadline. But by sundown rangers had checked 1,346 hunters in 99 different fields.

The arrests include 12 for unplugged guns, two for improperly plugged guns, 13 for hunting without licenses, one for shooting from a car, 35 for shooting over baited fields, and one for shooting over the bag limit.

The first-day arrests were made in areas around Macon, Dublin, Gainesville, Dawson, Carrollton, Cedartown and Athens, Lovell said.

Fairburn Man Stabbed In Fight Over Girl, 17

A Fairburn resident was critically wounded when he was stabbed early Friday, Clayton County police said and an Alabaman was held on a charge of assault with intent to murder.

Jerry Boyington, 26, of Fairburn, was admitted to Grady Hospital with stab wounds through the abdominal wall and in the head, Clayton police chief Howard Smith said.

Smith said Boyington's condition was given as critical and investigating officers had not been permitted to see him.

Wilmer Harris of Wetumpka, Ala., was held at the Clayton jail on the assault with intent to murder charge pending the outcome of Boyington's condition, Smith said.

The stabbing occurred at 4 a.m. Friday at the Plaza Shopping Center at Forest Park, the chief said.

Smith said the two men and a 17-year-old Forest Park girl had been to a dance hall in Atlanta and were en route home. He said officers were told that an argument developed and Harris slapped the girl and Boyington took up the fight.

The chief said that after the stabbing Harris and the girl at first insisted an auto was following them. They told police that they stopped and Boyington got out to ask occupants of the other car why they were following him, and they stabbed him.

Later, he said, the girl gave a different report of the stabbing.

Toy-Pistol Bandit Given 10 Years

A 21-year-old youth with no previous criminal record pleaded guilty to a cap-pistol robbery Friday and got a prison sentence of 10 years.

Judge Durwood T. Pye imposed the sentence on David Alfred Sansing of 3206 Lakewood Ave., SW, after Sansing pleaded guilty in Fulton Superior Court to robbing the Lyon Oil Co., 2670 Lakewood Ave., of $42 in cash and 13 gallons of gasoline.

The slender, blond-haired youth pleaded for mercy and said he wished he hadn't committed the offense.

The indictment against Sansing charged him with committing the robbery with an "article . . . having the appearance of a pistol, a dangerous weapon."

The youth was arrested by Atlanta police after a chase through Atlanta's southwest section shortly after the robbery.

Chief Jenkins A Grandpa Now

Police Chief Herbert Jenkins Friday forgot — temporarily, at least—the hustle and bustle that accompany the job of law and order in a big city.

The reason: his first grandchild, a bouncing 7½-pound boy born to Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Jenkins Jr., of Des Moines, Iowa.

Herbert Jr. is a federal government employe stationed at Des Moines. The new arrival was named Julian Herbert.

Reappraisal Cuts Taxes In Gwinnett

By JACK STRONG

Gwinnett County has set a new tax rate of 36 mills after a re-evaluation of county properties more than doubled last year's $13,389,000 tax digest.

Dr. W. A. Elinburg, county commission chairman, said Friday that the county operational budget is almost $600,000, based upon the new digest of $35,364,000. The tax rate was 59.5 mills before the reappraisal of county properties.

The reappraisal program has been completed after an 18-month study at a cost of $115,000. The digest is based upon 40 per cent of the county's total property value of $88 million, Dr. Elinburg said.

"The program is being wonderfully accepted by the people," Dr. Elinburg said. "The inequities under the old system were even greater than we anticipated.

"Most of the budget will be spent for county roads and bridges. We have a tremendous amount of work underway. We are planning a program to get additional industry to locate in Gwinnett. We hope to have all the schools, recreational facilities, and so forth, that industry is looking for, plus an attractive tax rate."

Ex-Patient Stabs Wife, Then Self

A man on furlough from the Milledgeville State Hospital Friday stabbed his wife and then injured himself with a knife in downtown Atlanta, police said.

James W. King, 47, of 400 Morgan Pl., SE, was admitted to surgery at Grady Hospital with a stab wound through the abdominal wall, detectives Harry McCollister and E. F. McKillop said.

His wife, Mrs. Alta Elizabeth King, 47, was treated at Grady for a stab wound in the chest and later was transferred to a private hospital.

King was quoted that he "blacked out" and did not know how the injuries were inflicted upon his wife or himself.

The Kings were passengers in a car driven by Thomas W. Hall, of 364 S. Candler Rd., SE, and also occupied by James J. Rice, 36, of 36 Spence St., NE. They were en route to a downtown department store where all four were employed.

In front of 38 Broad St., SW, Hall and Rice, who occupied the front seat, said they heard Mrs. King call for help and turned to find King had a knife in his hand. They restrained King until police arrived.

Detectives said they were told King recently had been released on furlough from the state hospital and obtained employment in the store where his wife worked.

Witnesses were quoted that no argument preceded the stabbing.

5 Boys Grabbed In 22 Burglaries

A 13-year-old boy was tabbed by police Friday night as the ringleader of a youth gang which officers said had admitted committing 22 burglaries in southeast Atlanta.

In addition to the 13-year-old who was charged with 16 burglary counts, four youths ranging in age from 12 to 16 also were arrested, police said.

Detectives W. E. Peacock and R. B. Moore said the group had admitted burglaries over the Capitol Avenue, Pryor Street, Jonesboro Road, Buchanan Street, Milton and Ridge Avenues section.

Lt. I. A. Thomas, head of the special night watch patrol, said the arrests ended a special vigil in the section headed by four officers assigned with dogs to search for burglars.

Patrolmen A. C. Potts and R. E. McElreah arrested three youthful gang members following a burglary in a garage at 65 Martin St., SE. Two others were picked up later.

Officers said the group specialized in robbery of business houses. They searched for money, smashed open vending machines and took anything of value they could cart away.

They were turned over to juvenile authorities.

(Names of accused persons under 17 years of age are withheld in accordance with the Georgia Juvenile Court law.)

No Boost In Taxes Foreseen

SWAINSBORO (UPI) — House Speaker George L. Smith II said Friday he does not foresee a tax increase in the 1961 General Assembly.

Smith said he believed the state Revenue department will take in enough money to take care of essential needs.

"Furthermore," Smith said, "I suspect that the people of Georgia will pass the highway revenue constitutional amendment so that we can have an appropriations bill in 1961.

"Knowing the Legislature as I do, they will keep the expenses of the state within the revenue of the state."

Smith, a longtime legislator and veteran of 16 years in state-level public affairs, hedged his prediction with few "ifs" in his telephone interview.

"I believe that due to the policy established by the Vandiver administration of economy, I do not foresee any tax increase in the present administration," he said.

"The reason is because the policy established by the revenue commission . . . will bring in sufficient revenue to implement any foreseen increases in the state budget."

Smith was interviewed on the eve of a release by Gov. Ernest Vandiver of details of allocations of funds totaling $43,123,690.88 for an expansion program announced last January.

The overall figure has been made available previously.

3 Bottle Bombs Shake Negro Office Here

Police are searching for persons who tossed three homemade fire bombs into a Negro car-for-hire headquarters at 732 Bankhead Ave., NW Thursday.

Patrolman T. J. Crutchfield said one bomb exploded, resulting in a small amount of damage to the floor. He said the bombs were by filling soft drink bottles with paint thinner and then stuffing a rag into the bottle mouth as a wick.

The bombs were hurled from an automobile and smashed out windows in the building, Crutchfield said. Witnesses reported hearing a car speed away but were unable to say whether the occupants were white or Negro.

Judge B.C. Gardner Retiring at 78 After 20 Years on Court of Appeals

Judge B. C. Gardner, who presides over the State Court of Appeals, will retire Oct. 15 at age 78, reportedly because of declining health.

Gardner will become judge-emeritus and will receive $12,000 per year, which is two-thirds of the active pay.

Supreme Court Chief Justice W. H. Duckworth and Appeals Judge Jule W. Felton presided at a ceremony in Gardner's honor Friday afternoon at the retiring jurist's home at 1149 St. Charles Ave., NE.

Gardner joined the appeals court in May 1940 and has been its presiding judge since 1952. He formerly served as solicitor general and judge of the Albany Judicial Circuit.

Negro Colleges Here to Keep Hands Off on Integration

By BRUCE GALPHIN

With classes reopening next week, Atlanta's Negro college administrators plan to continue their policy of non-interfence in anti-segregation activities by students.

That was the decision of the Council of Presidents of the Atlanta University system, the Rev. Benjamin Mays, president of Morehouse College, reported Friday.

Students of the university have spearheaded desegregation activities — including lunch-counter sitdowns, store boycotts and church kneel-ins — for the past several months.

As a result, there have been demands in many quarters that the college administrations crack down on the students' participation.

But Mays said Friday that there will be "no new policy" on the part of Atlanta University.

Mays made it clear that the university itself was taking no part in the protest movement.

"It was a student affair (last spring), of course, and whatever happens this fall will be a student affair," he declared.

"I'm quite sure that the Committee on Appeal for Human Rights will be reorganized and will function again," Mays said.

Student Lonnie King, head of the CAHR, confirmed Mays' statement.

"We are going to function, better than ever," King declared. "We're going to step up our activities."

He did not say what the activities would include.

Meanwhile, the Atlanta Board of Aldermen are holding up action on a Police Committee recommendation to redefine parades, which require advance city approval, as a public street gathering of four or more persons.

The proposal is believed to be designed to prevent the protest demonstrations from getting out of hand.

House Labeled Substandard Is At 86 Vine St.

The Constitution erroneously reported Wednesday that slum-clearance officials had placarded the house at 88 Vine St., NW, as substandard.

The story should have listed the address of the placarded house as 86 Vine St., NW.

The wrong identification was the result of a typographical error.

A Torah for Rosh Hashana

Rabbi Sydney Mossman, left, spiritual leader of Shearith Israel Congregation, holds a new Sefer Torah which is to be presented to the congregation at 3:30 p.m. Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Abe Auerbach, 1731 Wildwood Rd., NE. Sounding the Shofar—ram's horn—at right is Cantor Robert Ungar. The blare of the ram's horn at sundown Wednesday will usher in the most solemn days of the year for Jews—Rosh Hashana, beginning of the High Holy Days. Rosh Hashana is also the beginning of the year 5721 of the world, reckoned according to the lunar calendar of Jewish tradition. The Auerbach Torah, presented in memory of their son, Simcha, was written in Israel on the skin of kosher animals by a Yemenite Sephardic scribe and constantly rechecked for errors. It is only the second time in the memory of Rabbi Mossman that a new Torah—the word is usually translated "law," denotes "teaching" and includes doctrines and practices of Judaism—has been presented to a congregation here.

This is the story of a man . . . Who thought he was "more normal" than . . . His friends, his children and his wife . . . But let's look back upon his life . . . And all the foolish things he did . . . When he was just a "mixed-up" kid.

At college, in his freshman year . . . He lingered with a stein of beer . . . And with the wisdom of a sage . . . Solved all the problems of that age . . . But on his graduation day . . . Those "childish thoughts were put away."

Loyalty Seen Despite Vote

Democrats will return to the fold" by time of the general election.

Why did Georgians vote for free electors? There were almost as many different answers as campaign leaders.

Bell offered three reasons: (1) confusion over the use of the word "free" instead of "unpledged," (2) Democratas registering a protest against the party platform, and (3) Republicans.

"We do not believe this activity on the part of the Republicans was organized statewide," Bell said in a joint statement issued with co-chairman George L. Smith II. "To the credit of the Republican leaders in Atlanta, they asked their supporters not to vote for unpledged electors."

Carl Pruett of Griffin, chairman of the municipal employes division of the campaign, said there was "absolutely no question but a poor choice of words" resulted in the free elector vote.

He said he personally had voted for free electors because he was in a hurry, and then noticed it in time to change his ballot.

Jesse Draper, fifth district campaign co-chairman, said, "I don't think the word 'free' had anything to do with it." He said he viewed the outcome as a vote of confidence in the Democratic presidential electors, sort of like "proxy" votes stockholders give executives of big corporations.

Ivan Allen Jr., chairman of the finance committee, said he thought a major factor was the failure of Senators Russell and Talmadge to endorse the Democratic candidates.

Allen said the fact that "the two most popular men in Georgia did not commit themselves certainly influenced a lot of people and left it into doubt as to what course they will follow. Allen also cited confusion over the word "free."

The Bell-Griffin statement concluded on the note "it will be . . . up to the Democratic electors (if elected) to cast their vote in the electoral college in a way that will serve and protect the best interest of the state.

"Lest there be speculation, we are certain that no Democratic elector wil cast his vote for the Republicans."

U.S. Stands Firm on Congo, U.N.

outside the council, are attacks on the United Nations action in the Congo in almost every detail," Barco declared. "They attack the secretary-general, the U. N. Command, and the actions of the United Nations forces.

"Our reaction to this attack is clear. The United States stands for the continuation of the U. N. effort in the Congo, as do the distinguished representative of Ceylon and the majority of the members of this council. The representative of the Soviet Union has made clear that the Soviet Union does not.

"That is the issue. It is something that must be faced. It is, in fact, the paramount issue on which there can be no compromise if this organization is to survive as an effective instrument for peace."

A U. S. spokesman said the United States will insist upon putting to a vote its resolution.

Valerian A. Zorin, the Soviet deputy foreign minister, was asked by a reporter if his opposition voiced to the U. S. resolution meant he would vote against it. The reply was yes, thus indicating that the Soviet Union's 90th council veto was upcoming.

The United States was regarded as certain to ask for an emergency session if the Soviet Union casts the veto. Under the General Assembly's 1950 "uniting for peace" resolution an emergency session can be called within 24 hours by the vote of seven council members, when a veto prevents the council from acting in the interests of peace.

Diplomats expressed belief the United States can obtain the six other votes.

Now They'll Believe

LONDON (UPI)—The Evening Standard newspaper said Friday a hypochondraic recently ordered a tombstone bearing the inscription, "Now will you believe I'm sick?"

Elector Ruling Due by Nov. 8

names of national party nominees for president and vice president must appear on ballots with the names of party electors.

While there would be nothing to legally bind presidential electors to vote for the nominees Georgia voters favor, Henderson contends there would be a "strong moral persuasion" for electors to follow the will of voters.

And this is expected to help the Democratic nominees, John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson.

Henderson, a Democrat, has already filed his brief. Attorney Charles Bloch of Macon, representing the executive committee, and Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook's office, representing Secretary of State Ben W. Fortson Jr., have until Sept. 26 to file briefs.

NOT LIMITED

Henderson is seeking also to make Fortson a party to his suit.

Meanwhile, Henderson said in a prepared statement that the outcome of Wednesday's "straw vote" on electors was just what he claimed it would be in his suit. Henderson unsuccessfully had sought to enjoin the referendum.

He said the "absurd and embarrassing situation" of voters favoring "free electors" resulted from the primary not being limited to Democrats.

Ike Plans Talks, Insists They're Not a Campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House said Friday it may announce early next week a list of appearances by President Eisenhower during October. But it shied away from calling them "campaign plans" of the chief executive.

Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said he may announce Monday or Tuesday a list of Eisenhower speeches in other parts of the country scheduled for next month.

The President already has scheduled an Oct. 17 appearance in Detroit before an automobile industry group.

PICKRICK SAYS:

LESTER MADDOX

A LATE PRIMARY

is now suggested by the same Atlanta City Administration which in the past has fought late primaries. Is this Administration now trying to get the primary and general election so close together that there would not be sufficient time for an Independent or Republican candidate to qualify and run for mayor in the General Election of 1961. A late primary can have no effect on the outcome of the school opening problems of September, 1961, and the city administration on many occasions had publicly admitted it has no authority or responsibilities as far as Atlanta schools are concerned. So why the late primary? Will somebody tell the truth?

THERE IS NOTHING

I can do about it except talk, but I did not like the cartoon in Atlanta papers this week that depicted the Special Deputy Sheriffs in Atlanta, by showing them as unshaven, smoking big black cigars, and unloading dives and joints. Said cartoon on Monday of this week did, through such insinuation, class all special deputies as hoodlums and shady characters, when the newspapers and the citizens of Atlanta know that leading citizens of Atlanta are listed as special deputies of Fulton County. Honest, decent and law-abiding citizens who pay taxes and are a part of everything in community life that helps to make Fulton County a better place to live are on this list of special deputies. It is a shame that any newspaper would class such citizens in such an insidious cartoon and such newspaper folks should apologize to those they have attempted to shame. (This ad prepared and released for publication the day before Primary Election.)

IT WOULD BE

good if the local dailies would employ just one columnist and let him write and think like most of the people think.

Tech Unveils Gann Today In SEC Opener with 'Cats

Jackets Choice By Touchdown

By JACK WILLIAMS

Kentucky's Wildcats try Saturday to make opening day confetti out of Stan Gann's press clippings when Georgia Tech unveils its new "pass and pray" football offense at Grant Field.

A near sellout crowd of around 44,000 is expected for the annual battle of Southeastern Conference giants with the opening kickoff set for 2 p.m.

It'll be debut day for Mr. Gann, the 161-pound passing wizard from Northside High. And Coach Bobby Dodd will tell you that never has one man meant so much to a Tech team.

"We've restyled our entire offense because we've got Gann," Dodd said Friday. "We think he's the quarterback we've been looking for to make our team go."

So Gann will be a marked man when Kentucky brings its slick team into the big arena where Tech has proved almost unbeatable on opening day in the past.

Not since 1926 when Oglethorpe pulled a stunning 7-6 upset have the Yellow Jackets lost a seasonal opener played at home. The bookies, apparently influenced by such outstanding statistics, have tabbed Tech a six-point favorite.

Dodd calls the odds "way out of line," but Kentucky Coach

Georgia Pick By One Point

'Bama Match On Television

By AL THOMY

Constitution Sports Writer

BIRMINGHAM — Oddsmakers consider Georgia better than Alabama in their frightful Birmingham collision Saturday by the margin of Durward Pennington's trained toe.

A national television audience of millions is assured for the clash of the Southeastern Conference gladiators, who ended the 1959 seasons on bowl game TV screens.

Wailing Wally Butts of Georgia says the odds are all wrong; he insists Alabama should be a heavy favorite. Bawling Bear Bryant agrees the bookies have erred; he says Georgia should be a touchdown or more choice.

Both cry on the outside, but secretly each figures his team has an even or better chance of winning the game, which starts on WLWA-TV in Atlanta at 2:45.

The live crowd should be 9,000 short of the 44,000 Legion Field capacity.

There is merit to the cause of each team.

Not within recent memory can Bulldog faithful recall when Georgia put four better backs on the field than the order of quarterback Francis Tarkenton, halfbacks Fred Brown and Bobby Walden and fullback Bill Godfrey.

Tarkenton is the golden thread, the leader who manipulates the offense in the manner of a master strategist. Brown, who comes from a long line of Alabama greats, is a threat every time he touches the football. So is Walden, a hard-nosed sort of a fellow. Though slower than the others, Godfrey is the lad who shattered Alabama last year with a clever touchdown run of 45 yards.

Unfortunately, an old bugaboo returns to haunt Brown, who operates best on a dry track. Rain has been forecast for early Saturday in Birmingham, perhaps relenting by game time. Brown had no less

The Saturday Forecast

Invited guests from Kentucky will attempt to spoil Stan Gann's coming-out party at Georgia Tech and hard-nose Alabama hosts hope to hammer a dent in Georgia's Southeastern Conference crown in Birmingham.

That's a roundabout way of saying that a sparkling new football season is starting Saturday afternoon. Tech and Georgia share headline billing in conference matches as eight Southeastern Conference teams swing into action.

Outlar

A few tickets are still available for the big show at Grant Field. Several hundred are on sale in Birmingham, but you can remain in your living room and watch Georgia and Alabama mix it up. It's the NCAA Game of the Week on TV and WLWA-TV is local host.

The weatherman has cast a damper on both games, but clearer skies are forecast for Atlanta Saturday. Threat of rain remains over Birmingham.

After conferring with Messrs. Bobby Dodd, Blanton Collier, Wallace Butts and Bear Bryant, you're inclined to think that four teams will lose the two games.

Butts and Bryant, two gents who can spot a dark cloud in any silver lining, have established a new intercollegiate record for pessimism. Dodd, ordinarily an optimist, sees no reason why his Engineers should be rated as a touchdown favorite over Kentucky.

The reason, of course, is Grant Field. Tech hasn't dropped an opener in its own arena since 1926. Oddsmakers consider the contest on Legion Field a tossup, but Georgia rates a shaky one-point edge in most quarters.

The Engineers will present their new offense against Kentucky and the blueprint calls for wide-open football. Gann, the fabled sophomore from Northside, will be on the mound when Tech starts pitching.

—Wildcats Picked to Upset Tech

Few college football players have debuted under such tremendous pressure. No Tech sophomore has ever been so widely publicized before handling a varsity snap. Gann deserves the praise. He's the winning type who gets the job done. He has an uncanny knack of spotting receivers in the clear. Against Kentucky, however, ends Taz Anderson, Gerald Burch and other catchers may have trouble eluding defenders.

The Wildcats, who bordered on greatness, were undoubtedly the toughest losing team (4-6) in college football last season. Collier and his men are eager to erase bitter memories in one swipe Saturday.

Kentucky, in my opinion, is the most underrated team in the SEC. No squad in the conference hits harder, and Collier has the hosses in the backfield. Halfbacks Cal Bird and Charley Sturgeon are terrific ball carriers. Quarterback Tom Rogers, shifted from end, appears to be the missing man the Wildcats have needed to steer the attack. Jerry Eisaman, starting signal caller last year, is one of the league's better passers.

It's up front what counts and both squads have stickout linemen. Kentucky, as Collier often mentions, is loaded with sophomores, but they're athletes. A year ago Kentucky deserved at least an even break with Tech and lost a 14-12 heartbreaker in Lexington.

The winning team has scored two touchdowns in this game for four straight seasons. I believe darkhorse Kentucky will cash the two touchdowns Saturday and trim Tech, 14-7, in a rugged duel.

—Tide Rates an Edge Over Bulldogs

Citizens who enjoy primitive football will be in for a treat in Birmingham. Messrs. Butts and Bryant are staunch advocates of hard-nose combat. They believe that a good athlete should butt you, and both teams have stickout athletes.

When the curtain went up last fall Georgia was unanimously underrated and darted to the conference championship with seven straight league triumphs. Alabama was the first step on the ladder, dropping a 17-3 decision in Athens. But the Tide did not lose again and no team crossed the goal line twice after the Georgia game.

Francis Tarkenton, the finest quarterback in college football, will take dead aim at the terrific Tide defense. He'll have flying Fred Brown, absent from the Bama battle, in the all-star backfield with Bobby Walden and Bill Godfrey Saturday.

However, Pat Dye and Phil Ashe are the lone linemen on hand for starting encores. Observers seem to forget that the Bulldogs lost five regular linemen, brilliant safetyman Charley Britt and SEC pass leader Bobby Towns. They also lost the late J. B. Whitworth, perhaps the outstanding line coach in the game.

Alabama has improved. Maybe Georgia has, but I don't think so. Georgia rates an offensive edge, but Alabama has the superior defense. From this vantage point, Alabama looks like the winner. Say by a score of 10-7.

Elsewhere in the conference, favorite Ole Miss should ruin Houston's home opener, 28-7. Improving Tulane tangles with California in Berkeley, and the Greenies are the pick, 20-14. Minus Billy Cannon and company, LSU's sophomores figure to spank Texas A&M, 14-7. Ray Graves' first Florida edition should rout lightweight George Washington, 35-7. And these forecasts should shatter another brand-new crystal ball.

THE OTHERS: Texas 27, Nebraska 6; Pittsburgh 20, UCLA 13; N.C. State 19, VPI 16; Maryland 34, West Virginia 20; TCU 13, Kansas 10; Missouri 20, SMU 14; The Citadel 28, Newberry 7; Florida State 14, Richmond 0; Furman 14, Presbyterian 6.

Spahn Pitches No-Hitter, 4-0

Braves' Ace Wins 20th For 11th Year Over Phils

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Warren Spahn of the Milwaukee Braves reached one of his top goals Friday night by pitching a no-hitter in a 4-0 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies for his 11th 20-victory season.

The all-time winningest lefthander in National League history struck out 15 and walked two while gaining this 287th victory of his career and matching teammate Lew Burdette's no-hitter against these same Phils on August 18.

It was Spahn's fourth shutout of the season and his 51st since winning his first major league game in 1946.

A brilliant play by shotstop Johnny Logan and first baseman Joe Adcock saved the no-hitter—on the final out.

Lopez, Maris Homers Wallop Yanks Over Orioles by 4-2

NEW YORK (AP) — Hector Lopez and Roger Maris walloped home runs Friday night as the New York Yankees moved into a one-game lead over Baltimore by beating the Orioles 4-2 with ninth inning help from reliever Bobby Shantz in the opener of a four-game series.

Starter Whitey Ford, smarting from a "dead-arm" tag by Baltimore Manager Paul Richards, shut out the Birds on five hits until they broke loose with two out in the ninth.

But Shantz, coming on with the bases loaded, saved the decision by striking out Marv Breeding with the tying run on base after giving up a two-run single by Jim Busby.

It was the 10th victory against nine defeats for Ford, a 31-year-old left-hander who is having his worst season. The stubby southpaw had retired 14 in a row, and hadn't walked a man until the ninth. Then he had to give way when Walt Dropo singled, Ron Hansen doubled and Gus Triandos walked, loading the bases.

Busby's single broke up a string of 33 2-3 scoreless innings for Ford over the Orioles at Yankee Stadium. But he still managed to collect his fifth victory in seven decisions against the Birds this season.

While Ford was knocked out for the sixth straight time, the Yankee victory dropped the Orioles two games behind in the "lost" column once again. They have a dozen to play, compared to New York's 14, and now must sweep the remaining three games in this series to regain first place—and stay healthy.

Chuck Estrada, the Orioles' ace with a 17-9 record in this, his rookie season, faces Bob Turley (8-3) in Saturday's afternoon game.

Steve Barber, another of the Baby Birds, was the loser in this one. He now has a 10-6 record, after winning five of his previous six decisions.

NATIONAL GRID CHAMP SYRACUSE IDLE

Gibbs Leads Ole Miss at Houston, and Season Starts

NEW YORK (AP)—The major college football season swings into high gear Saturday, hardly waiting to draw a breath from summer vacations and practice sessions.

Over two dozen major elevens begin their 1960 campaign, and you'll have to look hard to find any of the easy openers of bygone days. These teams get a one-week jump on the traditional last-Saturday-in-September openers and they do it in a big way.

Though defending national champion Syracuse, also picked to repeat in 1960 by a pre-season poll of The Associated Press board of football experts, is idle, several aspirants to the throne are busy.

Mississippi, second in 1959 and the Sugar Bowl champ, travels to play the University of Houston. The Cougars seceded from the Missouri Valley Conference and soon hope to join Ole Miss and the Southeastern Conference, or get into the Southwest Conference.

They'll learn something of SEC life from the Rebels who still have their one-two quarterback punch of Jake Gibbs and Bobby Franklin. Gone is All-America fullback Charley Flowers, but Coach Johnny Vaught still has plenty of talent.

Washington, the Far West five titlist who belted Wisconsin 44-8 in the Rose Bowl, brings its 1959 first team back intact. All-America quarterback Bob Schloredt, with halfback George Fleming and fullback Don McKeta, goes against tough little College of the Pacific.

Southwest Conference co-champion Texas also bites off a tough one in Nebraska, a Big Eight team that broke Oklahoma's unbeaten conference winning streak at 74 last year. Texas has injury problems with quarterback Mike Cotton hindered by a pulled muscle and the men under him also laid up. Halfback Jim Sexton may have to fill the gap. He played a little at the position last year.

Two other Southwest Conference schools invade the Big Eight, with Southern Methodist, a ground attack team, now that Don Meredith is gone, meeting Missouri and Texas Christian taking on tough Kansas, picked by some for the Big Eight title.

The national television schedule gets under way on a new network (ABC), with the SEC clash between Alabama and Georgia 3:45 p.m., EST. Georgia, the defending conference champs, and 'Bama both have injury problems.

Two top intersectional clashes highlight action on the Pacific Coast. Independent Pitt takes on UCLA Saturday night in Los Angeles while Tulane meets California. This will be Cal's first game under Coach Marv Levy, one of 18 new mentors making debuts this weekend.

Other action in the South finds LSU at home to Texas A&M, Georgia Tech and Kentucky squaring off in an SEC battle and Maryland of the Atlantic Coast Conference helping West Virginia's Gene Corum inaugurate his college head coaching career. Virginia Tech and North Carolina State also meet.

Three top Eastern independents, Army, Navy and Penn State get under way. Army, with its lonely end no longer lonely, opens against the University of Buffalo. The Cadets will miss halfback Roger Zailskas, out for six weeks with an injured leg.

Navy, with Joe Bellino and Joe Matalavage, meets tough Boston College where Ernie Hefferle opens as head coach. Penn State, dedicating its new stadium, meets Boston University. The Nittany Lions are without Richie Lucas this year, and lost speedy halfback Roger Kochman for the year because of a bad knee.

Oklahoma State, competing in football in the Big Eight for the first time, plays SWC member Arkansas. The Cowboys' coach, Cliff Speegle, complains he has only 14 players ready to face the Porkers.

Other games:

SOUTH: Catawba at Davison, night; Richmond at Florida State, night; George Washington vs. Florida, at Jacksonville, Fla., night; Presbyterian at Furman, night; VMI at William & Mary.

MIDWEST: Hardin-Simmons at Cincinnati; Drake at Iowa State; South Dakota State at Kansas State; Villanova at Marquette, night; Montana State at North Dakota, night; New Mexico State at Tulsa, night; Denver at Wichita, night.

SOUTHWEST: Utah State at Texas Western, night.

FAR WEST: Wyoming vs. Montana at Billings; University of Mexico at New Mexico, night.

Brosnan, O'Toole Waylay Pirates, 4-3

Reds' Ace Reliefer Bails Out Slim Lefty

CINCINNATI (AP)—Ace fireman Jim Brosnan nailed down the last out Friday night as Cincinnati whipped National League-leading Pittsburgh, 4-3.

Southpaw Jim O'Toole had skillfully kept the Pirates at bay protecting an early lead, until the ninth.

But with two out, Dick Schofield walked and Smoky Burgess pinch doubled him home. That chased O'Toole, who gave up nine hits while striking out five.

Eddie Kasko's bases-loaded double in the second inning put over three of the Cincinnati markers.

The Pirates had picked up an unearned run in the second inning and another marker on three singles in the fourth.

Tigers Stun Chisox, 4-3

DETROIT (AP)—Harry Chiti's eighth inning home run gave the Detroit Tigers a 4-3 victory over Chicago Friday night and dealt the White Sox' pennant chances a damaging blow.

Chiti's blast came off a reliever Gerry Staley and broke a 3-3 tie.

The loss dumped the defending champion White Sox three games behind league-leading New York. The third-place White Sox are four games back in the vital loss column.

Mrs. Clay Sweeps City Crown, 3-1

Soft-spoken, modest Mrs. Jim (Dot) Clay halted a fighting rally by Mrs. Grace Lyons Friday for a 3-1 victory in the Atlanta Women's Championship at Druid Hills Golf Club.

CITY CHAMP CLAY

Defeats Lyons, 3 and 1

Mrs. Clay broke to the front by dropping a 10-footer for a 4 on the first hole, but lost to a par on the second when Mrs. Lyons blasted beautifully from the trap and sank her putt.

Mrs. Clay regained her 1-up lead on the third with a par, went 2-up with a 12-foot putt on four, but promptly gave it back when she sliced into the ditch on the fifth.

On the sixth Mrs. Clay rammed home a 20-foot deuce putt and pitched for a birdie 4 to the dogleg 7 to go 3-up, but lost to a par three bymissing the green and chipping short on the eighth.

Mrs. Lyons matched her opponent's birdie four on the ninth, pitching neatly within inches of the pin to turn 2-down. Mrs. Clay went out in 38 to Mrs. Lyon's 40.

Mrs. Clay knocked in a 15-footer on 10 for a 3-up advantage and protected it by a matching par 4 on the 11th.

At this point Mrs. Lyons launched a beautiful rally. She rolled in an 18-foot birdie putt on 12 and won 13 with a par to be only one down.

Then the lead see-sawed back to the dogleg 14. Mrs. Clay dropped a wedge shot four feet from the hole and got down for a birdie four.

Mrs. Lyons lost the 16th when her iron caught the ditch and then the holes ran out for her.

Bulldogs One Point Pick Over 'Bama

than five wet fields to navigate last year.

To oppose this array, Bryant counters with junior quarterback Pat Trammell, a bulldozing, option-runner; soph halfback Ray Abruzzese, a redshirt graduate who has that long distance gear; halfback Billy Richardson, light but dangerous, and fullback Tommy White, ditto.

Trammell's passing showed mark improvement in spring practice, but Bryant is expected to utilize Bob Skelton for the big air game.

The Bear's defensive sparring in 1959 resulted in a highly respectable 7-1-2 record and a trip to the Liberty Bowl. Now, they say, he's ready to open up and he has the type of boys who know the system.

Butts has a lot of confidence in his first unit. He fears Bama has more reserve strength.

In that No. 1 line, he'll start Ray Clark and Clyde Childers at end, Pete Case and Fred Lawrence at tackle, All-America Pat Dye and Roy Betsill at guard and Phil Ashe at center.

Extensive substituting at right end is expected, since the coaches are still trying to find the right combination.

Guard Billy Neighbors, the Tide's heaviest at 216, anchors a line that averages only 197, contrasted to Georgia's 206. Bama is strong on the flanks, adequate at tackles.

The Bulldogs enter this big one with only one experienced quarterback. Second unit QB Dale Williams, counted on for defensive duty and offensive relief, is hobbled by a knee injury. He would not be at full speed even if he played. Sophomore Jake Saye, who shares the punting with ace Walden, is the play-maker behind Tarkenton.

Bryant has one regular on the roster of injuries. Linebacker Buddy Wesley will not dress. Halfbacks Cotton Clark and Gary Martin are also out for the game.

Butts anticipates 'Bama will quick-kick and play control football.

Spahn Hurls No-Hitter

rapped the first pitch, and the ball caromed off Spahn's glove. Logan dashed in behind the mound, scooped up the ball and fired to first, where Adcock stretched and stabbed the low and wide throw.

The no-hitter left Spahn, 39, with just one more goal—winning 300 games before hanging up his glove. He fired one-hitters against St. Louis in 1951 and against Philadelphia in 1953.

This was the third no-hitter of the National League season. Don Cardwell of the Chicago Cubs pitched the first, against St. Louis May 15.

After getting the first two batters on soft taps, Spahn retired the next five on strikeouts. Then, after a foul pop, he struck out losing pitcher John Buzhardt to end the third inning.

With two out in the fourth, Spahn missed the corners and walked Ken Walters on a 3-2 pitch. He also walked Cal Neeman on a 3-1 count with one out in the fifth.

Spahn's record includes a 5-0 record against the Phils.

Dodd Unveils Tech's 'Pass-Pray' Offense

Blanton Collier agrees with the bookies.

"We would like to have had more time to get ready for Tech," Collier said Friday. "When you get past our first team, we'll be playing young, inexperienced boys and we needed more time to get them ready."

This is a rematch of two teams which staged a thriller at Lexington on opening day a year ago. The Jackets finally won that one, 14-12, but almost got passed out of the stadium in the second half.

Overall, Tech leads the series, 10 to seven with one tie. The Wildcats' last win came in 1958 at Lexington by 13-0.

Both teams whipped through final practice sessions on Rose Bowl Field Friday afternoon. They had planned to limber up on Grant Field, but because of a light rain, the playing field was covered.

The weatherman expects brighter weather Saturday, and this comes as good news to Techmen who plan to fill the air with passes.

Gann will have as his main targets a pair of brilliant ends, Capt. Gerald Burch and Taz Anderson and halfbacks Billy Williamson and Tom Winingder.

Larry Lafkowitz, surprise of the team's scrimmage a week ago, opens at fullback to round out the starting backfield.

Up front, Tech will count on such talented performers as tackles Billy Shaw and Ed Nutting, guards Harold Ericksen and Dave Watson and center Willie McGaughey.

Only first string casualty of the practice grind was guard Mike Nicholl. He won't see action.

Kentucky counters with two of the finest halfbacks anywhere. They are Calvin (Thunder) Bird and Charlie Sturgeon, both of whom tallied a touchdown against Tech a year ago.

Senior Tom Rodgers, trying his hand for the first time at quarterback, will direct the Wildcats . . . and watch out for him. Kentucky coaches think he may be the offensive spark they've been looking for.

Leaders up front will be center Irv Goode, one of the best; guard Lloyd Hodge and end Dickie Mueller.

It is interesting to note that both Tech and Kentucky claim their biggest weakness is lack of depth. Dodd has said he will have to count on about 15 players. Collier plans to platoon two teams, but says he must keep his fingers crossed when the second team is in the game.

Decatur Smashes Cross Keys, 19-0

Rainey, Clegg, Eichhoff Lead Bulldog Infantry

An unstoppable running attack consisting of Hue Rainey, Bill Clegg and Dick Eiskhoff powered the Decatur Bulldogs to a 19-0 triumph over visiting Cross Keys, Friday night.

Eickhoff put the first six points on the board with a 65-yard romp behind the perfect blocking by ends David Popwell, David Webster and backs Joe McGhee, Rainey and Clegg.

Mud, rain and expert defensive play by Martin Maddox hexed the Indians' passing and Bulldogs Freddy Wheeler, Herbert Byerly and Danny Griffin held Cross Keys to 56 yards on the ground.

Charlie Hall's Bulldogs rushed for 262 yards, Rainey leading the way with 72 and Clegg getting 55.

It was the second sub-region victory for Hall who will match teams with Southwest DeKalb's Dewey Alverson next Friday.

Panthers Turn Back Murphy

By RED MULLINS

A 90-yard second half kickoff return by swift Dwight Youngblood was the play that made the difference Friday night as Southwest DeKalb struck early and held on for an 18-12 victory over Murphy.

Taking Walter McElroy's opening boot on his own 10-yard line, halfback Youngblood scampered all the way to paydirt to put Southwest DeKalb out in front 18-0 — too far ahead for the rallying Eagles to catch.

Stayton Field Goal Beats Wolves, 3-0

West Fulton Catches Smith In Touchdown Blitz, 31-7

By PAUL ATKINSON

They took a page from the pros' book Friday night at Grady Stadium.

Frank Jernigan's North Fulton Bulldogs, frustrated at every scoring opportunity by fierce Southwest goalline defending, used a three-yard field goal by kicking specialist Van Stayton for a 3-0 victory with only 1:05 left.

Earlier most of the crowd of 6,500 sat in as Jack Bush's West Fulton Owls flanked flankers outside of flankers in a razzle-dazzle display that caught Smith in a blizzard of touchdowns, 31-7.

It was this sort of evening for North Fulton. Twice Southwest had refused to budge at the three-yard line. End Larry Haynie repelled the first smash, falling on quarterback Jimmy Sudderth's fumble at the 11 late in the second quarter. A Sudderth-to-David Truby screen pass netted nothing on 4-and-7 early in the fourth quarter.

But North Fulton, gaining revenge for a 14-13 loss last season, wouldn't yield the offensive floor.

Deep in the last period, Suddeth fired to Truby for 13 in a 3-and-15 spot, sent Cam Crockett rocketing for five and a first at the seven.

It was fullback Alex Szecsey for two, Crockett for one and Truby for one. Then Stayton fired from the three for the three.

Quarterback Johnny Carson hit Tommy Lewis on passes of 26, 9 and 11. But time ran out at the North Fulton 35.

Haynie and linebacker Steve Slay had 13 and 12 tackles for the Wolves; Mike Earing, Jon Kilgore and Bobby Whaley, 8, 6 and 6 for North Fulton in the defensive classic.

Quarterback Lynn Hughes, mixing his plays masterfully, hit on eight of 13 passes for 132 yards and a touchdown. Twice he called on halfback Bobby Hulsey and got 6- and 40-yard touchdowns from the fleet senior, the latter on a sparkling double reverse.

Hughes kept for two yards and one TD, found end Donnie Edwards for 53 yards and a fourth touchdown and sent fullback Mike Holston barreling for the fifth. Johnny Tibbetts scored Smith's touchdown, setting it up on runs of 9, 5, 23 and 1, latter for the six-pointer.

Barons Top Crackers

innings during regular season, fired nine rounds of blanks at Bob Dustal and Vince Trakan.

And while there was nothing awesome about the seven-hit barrage the Barons directed at big Jim Harwell, it was lethal enough to gun the fourth place finishers into the four-out-of-seven playoff finals against third place Little Rock.

Atlanta did mount what looked like one of its patented winning rallies in the ninth inning when Jim Koranda slammed a one-out single, the Crackers' fifth safety, and Jim Williams and Don Le John coaxed Trakan for free passes with two outs.

But it was only a masquerade, for Trakan struck out dangerous Doug Camilli, representing the winning run, on three pitches. "The Bear" let a fat one ride down the middle, then Trakan made him bite for two wide pitches.

A knot of 335 faithful, smallest Ponce de Leon Park crowd of the year, huddled in rainy, windy, footballish weather and watched the Crackers and Barons prove the folly of holding meaningless playoffs.

Veteran Dustal was solved for only fruitless doubles by Bill Lajoie and Tim Harkness before his pitching arm began hurting and he was relieved with one Cracker dead in the seventh.

But except for three errors, one of the most costly by Harwell himself, "Big Jim" might have been matching goose-eggs with the Baron righthander instead of trailing by 3-0.

Bob Micelotta walked, claimed second on a wild pitch and scored the first run in the third when Harwell dropped Harkness throw to first base after he fielded Dick Young's grounder.

Young's two-out single sent the second run home in the fifth after Gip Dickens walked and Micelotta singled.

Dickens' leadoff single in the seventh led to a final unearned run. Poor fielding by Camilli on Micelotta's sacrifice and Gene Wallace on a "double play" ball left the gate open.

In winning the rubber game of the five-game series, attended by only 1,452, the Barons enjoyed only their third success in 14 Poncey outings.

And it was meager revenge for Skeeter Newsome's crew. For the Crackers won 14 of 27 battles all-told. And their four-game series sweep over Birmingham eventually proved to be the deciding factor in bringing Atlanta its record 17th pennant.

Fleet Sylvan Backs Clip Roosevelt, 14-0

Sylvan High School scored in the second and fourth quarters Friday night to defeat Roosevelt, 14 to 0, at Cheney Stadium.

The first touchdown was set up when Roberts passed 16 yards to Jordan. Then Aiken rolled out 24 yards. Roberts went the final seven yards for the touchdown.

In the final quarter, Sylvan back Alfred Spence went 34 yards to the Roosevelt 28. Chapman followed with a 13-yard run and after a penalty Spence got five more to the 15-yard line. Chapman then scampered to remaining yardage for the score. Both extra points were kicked by Aiken.

Most of the offensive fireworks were supplied by Sylvan's fast backfield, although Roosevelt's defensive proved surprisingly strong. Sylvan rolled up a smashing 211 yards rushing while the defense held Roosevelt to 67. Passing was about equal, with the edge going to Sylvan 36 to 35.

Not only did the Trojans exhibit one of the best offenses in the two games played, but held Druid Hills so well that the Devils gained only two first downs and one of those on a penalty in the second half. A total of 20 penalties were accepted with numerous others refused by both teams.

Avondale Rolls, 41-0

Left halfback Chuck Belcher took off around right end Friday night and ran 21 yards to lead Avondale to a smashing 41-0 triumph over Gordon High School of Decatur.

Belcher and Mike Herron, Avondale tackle, scored two touchdowns within five minutes of the opening kickoff to rout the new football school Gordon, which played a B team schedule in 1959. Avondale is in its first year as an AAA football team.

Avondale is now 3-0 on the year. Gordon was led by Stanley Logan in the rushing department.

Last Train from Atlanta

First Union Shell Killed a Little Girl

By A. A. HOEHLING

Shortly before noon on July 20, Ed Lawshe of Atlanta was crossing Ivy and East Ellis streets. The day had become humid. Lawshe mopped his brow as he hurried along, and glanced across the street at a small girl and her parents on the northwest corner.

Suddenly, there was a rattle and whish of air just over his head. In the next instant, he was deafened and stunned by an explosion and enveloped in a choking cloud of dust. When he could see again, the child was in the middle of the intersection, lying on her face, in a welling puddle of blood. Her mother and father, dazed, were struggling to their feet.

Lawshe gaped, finding it difficult to believe the first shell had fallen on Atlanta, and that he had been but yards away from it. When he reached the little girl's side, he could see she was dead.

BOMBING STARTS

Other citizens were hastening towards the intersection of Ivy and East Ellis, attracted by the blast and the brown cloud of dust and smoke now slowly dissipating over the rooftops.

On the other side of Atlanta, Mollie Smith, a young lady, heard the shell explode. One of her brothers said:

"What a big gun!" and another brother, who was present at the Battle of Manassas, said:

"That is a shell. They are going to bombard the city."

Andy Neal, now in Atlanta, wrote in a letter: " . . . I never felt that Atlanta would be given up without a fight until lately. If the enemy will press on now I fear our Army will fall back to East Point.

By afternoon, fighting erupted along the Peachtree stream on the northern outskirts of Atlanta. One Confederate soldier, W. P. Archer, believed the Southerners had surprised the Yankees at mealtime, as he wrote:

PEACHTREE CREEK

"The Battle of Peachtree Creek was on good and strong. At first the Federals seemed demoralized and panic-stricken and everything seemed to favor the Confederates, but this situation did not last long, for just over beyond the creek lay thousands of bluecoats, who came sweeping down like a thunderbolt upon the thin lines of Hood's Confederates. For two hours and thirty minutes the battle raged."

E. B. Fenton of the 20th Connecticut Volunteer Infantry was in the core of the fighting:

"Four times during that afternoon the rebels tried to carry our line but were as often sent reeling back. From 3 o'clock until 8 we stood with no cover, and without assistance or relief, and yet maintained our position and repulsed every assault of the enemy. In front of us were found the dead and wounded of the 23rd, 44th and 55th Mississippi Regiments who had been brought against our regiment, which itself sustained a loss of nearly half its officers and men.

"The first attempt of Gen. Hood to show the rebel army 'how to fight instead of how to retreat' resulted in a loss on his part of more than 6,000 men."

W. P. Archer was among the defenders who retreated into the main line of fortifications north of Atlanta, "leaving our dead and wounded, besides those who were missing, also leaving our rifle-pits in possession of the enemy."

THE DEAD AND WOUNDED

Fenton was seriously wounded himself:

"The roar and crash of battle ceased; the sulphurous smoke had cleared away, but how strange the scenes about us! The plains and hillsides were strewn with corpses of men where they fell. The dead and dying were lying close together, where a few short hours before all was excitement—the excitement of many a brave comrade's last battle—now an oppressive silence prevails; there is the groaning and the crying of the wounded. In quiet tones we speak to each other. The question passes back and forth, 'where are you wounded?'

" 'Through the body.'

" 'And you?'

" 'An arm broken.'

" 'My knee smashed with a piece of shell,' or

" 'A minie bullet through the foot . . .'

" . . . so the low replies pass around.

Captain J. P. Austin, of the 9th Kentucky Cavalry, who had once served with Colonel John H. Morgan's raiders, galloped into Atlanta in the early evening. His horse was dirty and sweaty, but he was unhurt. He wrote home:

"Our army fell back to Atlanta under a heavy fire from the enemy's batteries, located to the left of the Peachtree road.

"We found the city in a wild state of excitement. Citizens were running in every direction. Terror-stricken women and children went screaming about the streets seeking some avenue of escape from hissing, bursting shells, as they sped on their mission of death and destruction. Perfect pandemonium reigned near the Union Depot.

Into the night the city was alive with noise — men and women shouting and hurrying, and the rumble of wagons bearing the wounded.

No one slept in Atlanta.

Scouting TV Tonight

NBC To Devote Hour To Campaign Stars

By THE TV SCOUT

BEST BETS—A new mystery series and the first of eight programs covering the political campaign are Saturday's highlights.

Checkmate is another of those detectives-by-the-gross series. We are introduced to Checkmate, Inc., a San Francisco concern consisting of two detectives (Anthony George and Doug McClure) and their consultant, a professor of criminology (Sebastian Cabot). Their object, they claim, is to prevent crimes. Client Number One is Anne Baxter, as a headstrong ranch owner with a personality one of the characters describes as not split, but fractured.

She thinks someone is trying to kill her, and the evidence seems to support her. Prominent in the climax is a murderous stallion, played by four trained stallions taking turns. Miss Baxter, who is actually a good horsewoman, has opportunities to demonstrate her talent here.

The plot for this one is fairly obvious right along; let us hope that Checkmate pays a bit more attention to its story in weeks to come. 8:30-9:30 (Ch. 5).

NBC, from now until the election, will present The Campaign and The Candidates, each Saturday. This first show and the last one, on Nov. 5, will summarize the campaign to date.

In between, there will be four shows with interviews with each of the presidential and vice presidential candidates, and two panel shows. Saturday's program is divided into four parts. First, there'll be a look at the rigors of campaigning. Then, the major segment, the views of Kennedy and Nixon on the important issue (such as farm economy, Cuba, religion) will be contrasted by intercutting excerpts from their speeches.

A third portion will deal with what each of the four candidates did in the preceding 48 hours, and, lastly, the four correspondents covering the four candidates will be added to evaluate the campaign to date.

The idea here is to cover the campaign as NBC so successfully covered the conventions—with news, rather than features. More tape will be used than in the past. Frank McGee is in charge here. 9:30-10:30 (Ch. 2).

2:45 p.m. (Ch. 11) — College Football begins with the NCAA schedule switching to ABC this season. This means no color, if you have a color set, but otherwise the coverage should be about the same. The opener is the Alabama - Georgia game, from Birmingham, Ala. A College Football Scoreboard, giving you all the scores, will follow each Saturday's game this season.

Insurance Firms Appeal Curb on Fire Rate

Insurance Commissioner Zack D. Cravey's order substantially modifying the 7.7 per cent average increase requested in fire insurance rates was appealed to Fulton Superior Court Friday.

The Georgia Inspection and Rating Bureau claims the adjustments in the rate granted by Cravey "would not provide the relief needed from the underwriting losses suffered by the companies."

Cravey granted what the insurance firms called "minor adjustments" on Sept. 2, after public hearings on Aug. 5 and 23.

"It is the opinion of the rating bureau," the organization said, "that evidence submitted in the rate filing and at the public hearing warranted the increased rates requested."

A decision on the appeal is expected within 60 days.

The requested increase was opposed by the Georgia Veterans Service Bureau and the City of Atlanta. Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler said the facts called for a decrease, instead of an increase.

STUDENTS OFTEN SPEND MORE TIME PLANNING THEIR CHEAT STRATEGY THAN THEY DO STUDYING FOR TESTS

Whom Do Classroom Cheaters Cheat?

For one reason or another almost everyone has tried their skill at cheating in the classroom.

Maybe it wasn't a major case of cheating, but high school and college students across the country freely admit everybody does it at one time or another.

Surveys show that 67 to 84 per cent of teen-age students cheat at one time or another. Their reasons will strike a note with almost everyone.

1. "I can't remember what I read. My mind just goes blank on a test."

2. "I just don't like certain subjects and I can't pass without cheating."

3. "The college my folks want me to go to requires top grades."

4. "Others do it — why shouldn't I?"

5. "I guess I could pass most of the time, but I'm not really sure."

6. "In my classes if you make good grades on your own you're a square."

Last school term, the Chamblee High School paper reported that out of 65 students in senior English classes who answered the question "Do you cheat in any way?" only 19 answered "no."

The paper said that the overwhelming majority of the seniors who filled in the questionnaire estimated that at least 90 per cent of Chamblee's students have cheated at some time.

NO FULL-TIME CHEATERS

No students at Chamblee admitted cheating all the time or most of the time, the paper reported.

People have been aware that some cheating has been going on in some degree but the real "shocker" came recently from New York. College students there were doing business with organizations which would ghost-write a thesis or provide a substitute to take a test — for a fee.

"My conscience always hurts after I cheat," one Atlanta teen-age girl said, "but sometimes I just have to do it when I don't keep up with my work."

"I think some of us cheat," said another girl, "as a game to see if we can beat the teacher. Actually I guess we are only cheating ourselves, but at test time, it's hard to see it that way."

"Some teachers seem to be so unconcerned about cheating," a south side boy said.

PARENTS TO BLAME

And some teens blamed parents for contributing to their cheating tricks. "My father is always bragging about some slick deal he pulled at work. What's the difference?"

"I'd rather do a little cheating to get good marks than face my parents with average or poor grades. They don't expect me just to do my best but demand that I make straight As," another girl said.

While teen-agers give these excuses and reasons for cheating, they don't really believe they are excusable.

"When you cheat you don't gain anything," a teen-age boy said. "I learn more by missing a question sometimes."

Some of the current cheating devices include "gyp" sheets taken to a test; penciled notes written on sleeve cuffs, or finger nails; notes written on the desk the day before; a small piece of paper concealed in the palm of the hand, stuffed in the shoe or stuck to a charm bracelet or necklace medallion.

THE SOLUTION?

What are some of the solutions to cheating?

Students believe that honor systems, student courts and better training in the lower grades would go a long way in eliminating cheating.

A northside teen-ager said, "I don't think an honor system would work. There's not much honor in today's young people."

Another said, "If teen-agers feel they are trusted and have respect for their teachers they will be honest."

Few students who cheat gain more than momentary satisfaction. "It's much more rewarding to gain something on your own knowledge rather than on someone else's," a girl said. "It's a good feeling to earn your own good grades."

She'd Like to Throw Away The Entire Male Population

DEAR MRS. RICKER:

I've HAD it! I'd like to throw away the whole male population! When a boy asks me if he can come over to see me I usually say "okay" and tell him what time to be here. For example, "about seven-thrity or quarter to eight."

I wait and wait. If he doesn't show up by 8:30 I go out. Later he comes sauntering by and is burned up because Mom says I'm out! Why on earth don't boys call if they are going to be late? Haven't they ever heard of telephones? I'm beginning to think the majority of boys are like this.

KAY

DEAR KAY:

I agree that when a boy finds he is going to be late for a date he should call the girl and tell her. While there could be times when it is not possible to do this, usually a phone can be found without too much difficulty.

I believe you just haven't happened to find the right boy yet. There are many boys who are punctual, so let's not "throw away the whole male population." After all, they're kind of nice to have around!

DEAR MRS. RICKER:

I am a 16-year-old boy and I will be 17 in January. My problem is that my father won't let me drive. In fact, he won't even teach me. All of my friends drive and I feel left out. I have lost three or four girls simply because of this situation. I'll be a junior in high school this fall and I believe I am old enough to start dating and driving a car. I have an 18-year-old brother who got his driver's license on his 16th birthday. Even my 15-year-old brother drives our car and truck. I would like to have your opinion about this matter—do you think I am being unreasonable to want to drive? Ben.

DEAR BEN:

According to the driving rules of your state your 15-year-old brother should not be permitted to drive unless he is enrolled in a school driver training program. So, unless your father has a definite reason to distrust your judgment I cannot understand why he doesn't want you to learn to drive.

My own son had his license and was driving at your age so, as far as your age is concerned, I consider you old enough to drive—and date, too.

Since your older brother knows how to drive can't you persuade him to teach you—if Dad has no objections?

DEAR MRS. RICKER:

I have been going steady with a girl for about six months. We are both 15. Until last week we were getting along fine. Then, I heard that she has been dating another boy when I don't take her out. I can't find out who he is or where he goes to school. Should I just drop her or ask her about it? Paul.

DEAR PAUL:

I believe you should ask your girl about the rumors you have heard. But—first of all, make up your mind in advance whether you are going to believe her if she says they are untrue.

You see, Paul, if you do not trust her enough to take her word against some very vague rumors, there is really not much sense in continuing your friendship. Whether a friendship is between two people of the same sex or persons of the opposite sex, it is not a true friendship without mutual trust.

In your case I believe you are too young to go steady for a prolonged period. Regardless how this situation turns out, I suggest you date others, at least occasionally.

DEAR MRS. RICKER:

I cannot talk this problem over with my parents because they have extremely high standards and would not understand. Recently we moved to a new neighborhood.

I was very popular with my former schoolmates and because of this I did not want to move. The section we live in now is not thickly populated and the only school is small. There is just one clique considered worth while in the school.

At first these kids seemed to be very decent but actually they are not. I had only been out with them a few times when I discovered the truth. I tried to tell my parents about them but they said I was prejudiced because I hadn't wanted to move. They urged me to continue to go out with the group and I did, against my better judgment.

The last time I was with them I got into some trouble. I want to tell my parents about it and admit my part in what happened but how can I do it without shocking them?

TOM

DEAR TOM:

I can understand your reluctance to tell your parents the truth about these youngsters since they already believe you are prejudiced. However, it seems to me it would be much wiser to tell them the truth and try to win their cooperation than to go on as you are now.

In other words, Tom, I believe it would be better to "shock" them now than to wait until something much more serious happens which might shock them for the rest of their lives.

In the Midst of Pigmies? Take Heart, Tall Girls!

Tall girls do have a problem. Especially if all the handsome boys at school are still growing pigmies.

Tall girls so often are tempted to try to minimize their height by slouching, flattening their feet with heel-less shoes or dropping their heads like wilted stalks of celery.

About all these tactics do is take off an inch or two while runing her figure and feet.

When you allow your shoulders to droop, your spine goes into a neat S-curve, your chest caves in, your stomach juts out and your hips sag like they have a couple of sand bags hanging on them. Your figure is so distorted your clothes won't even hang properly.

Rather than wander through life curved up in an S, try an intelligent approach to the height problem.

Choose a wardrobe to give an impression of smallness. Wear full skirts, hemmed short with wide belts. This and boxy jackets bring you closer to the ground.

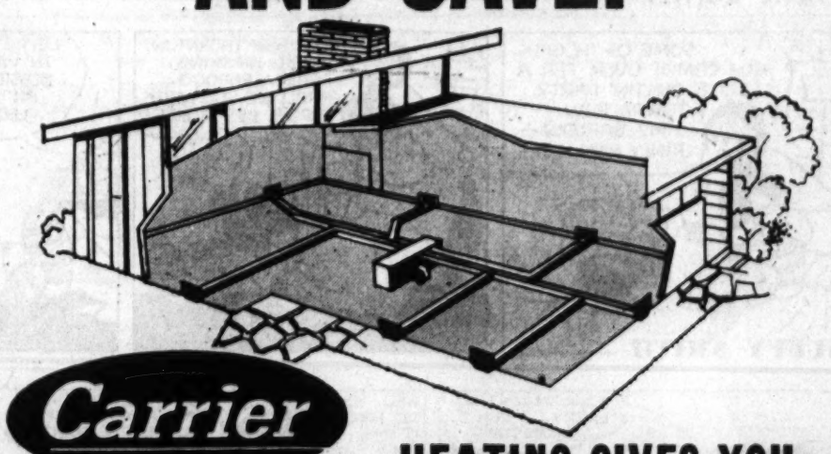

Avoid long, unbroken chemise lines, vertical stripes and low-slung hemlines that accent the distance between your head and your feet.

Low-heeled shoes are much better than loose, floppy loafers and ballet slippers that lead to broken arches and a duck-like walk when constantly worn.

If you still feel like a skyscraper in the desert, take heart in the fact that most high-fashion models are over five-foot-seven; that some of the smartest and prettiest clothes are designed for taller girls and that the boys who now come to your shoulders will probably be towering over you when they reach their full neight.

THE PHANTOM

Birthday Celebrated With Fashion Show

When little Nancy Merritt's birthday rolled around, her mother, Mrs. B. V. Merritt of 1460 Briarcliff Rd., NE, racked her head for a party idea that would be novel and fun. But the girls in the neighborhood themselves came up with the perfect solution. Everyone was thinking about going back to school and everyone had a closet full of new school dresses, so the party would be a fashion show of new school clothes. Judy Steiner modeled her green corduroy jumper with white blouse and received a candy apple on a pencil from Judy Goldstein who was modeling her red cotton dress trimmed with plaid. Lisa Steiner showed the perfect "first day" school dress as she modeled a blue rick-rack-trimmed white skirt with a blue printed bodice. She brought along a new nifty lunchbox for the ponytail crowd, too. Shelley Beeber gave the separate look a boost as she appeared in a mustard-colored gathered skirt paired with a white blouse featuring a tucked front embroidered in orange and mustard. Pin the worm in the apple was one of the fascinating games played by the threesome of young fashion models including Pam Tesler, in wine dress with apron front, Nancy Merritt, in three-piece plaid outfit, and Shelley Mills also in plaid with white blouse. A NEIGHBORLY BON VOYAGE KISS FOR THE TEACHER
"We'll Miss You," Joey Faulkner, 10, Told His Neighbor, Mrs. Cannon

This Queen for a Year Has Had Money To Burn

By JIM SHEPPARD

Have you ever longed for money to burn?

Elizabeth Foy Cannon of Atlanta hasn't, but she has had money to burn, if she had wanted to, and soon she will have some to burn again, if she chooses.

Mrs. Cannon hasn't burned any money, neither does she plan to. "There are so many other interesting things you can do with money," she said.

Few mothers have adventurous spirits enough to pack up their families and go to a strange land to live, but that's what Mrs. Cannon has done and is doing again. And that is where the money comes in.

QUEEN FOR A YEAR

Soon she will be "another queen for a year" in a distant land—with plenty of money to burn . . . er . . . spend.

The cosmopolitan educator will teach science for a year at Istanbul's Kadikoy, Moda College.

If her Turkish accommodations are half as good as they were when she taught on a Fulbright grant in Burma, she'll be treated like a queen, she said.

In Burma, as will be the case in Turkey, she was paid a "fabulous salary for a teacher," she said, but she was allowed to take only "small change" out of the country. Hence, the teacher's family spent a year in high style in an 11-room house with private swimming pool. They kept four servants and a chauffer-driven limousine.

TAUGHT IN PANAMA

Mrs. Cannon's globe trotting began in the 1930s when she taught high school in Cristobal, Panama Canal Zone. In the states, she has taught in Georgia and Tennessee high schools. She is on a year's leave of absence from the DeKalb County School System's Cross Keys High School.

Her daughters, Judy and Ann, are en route to Turkey by ship. Traveling by air, Mrs. Cannon will have already established housekeeping in Istanbul when the ship docks. The girls plan to study and travel.

Mrs. Cannon, a native of Sylvester, got her bachelor's degree from Wesleyan College, Macon, and her master's in chemistry from Emory University. She had done postgraduate work at Georgia State College and Duke University.

Mrs. Cannon said many exchange teacher grants go begging for personnel. It was during the summer at Duke, where Mrs. Cannon was participating in a National Science Foundation study grant, that she received a query from the U.S. Government wanting to know if she'd like to go to Turkey.

She had to make a hurried decision. "I discussed it with the girls," smiled the widow, "and they were thrilled to death. We decided to jump at this opportunity. As soon as summer school was over, we rushed home and packed our bags. We couldn't resist this temptation to be queens for a year."

Mrs. Cannon said she and the girls intend to stay so busy they won't find time to become homesick. "A year passes so quickly when you're having a good time, we'll be back in Atlanta before we realize a year has gone by," she said.

With a big smile, she reminisced about Burma and Panama and her international sojourns, while anticipating their adventures in Turkey: "We don't intend to bring any money back because it's in the contract we can't. I can see us now, living like queens, ready to leave to come home to the states with money to burn if we wanted to."

Harris PTA

The J. C. Harris PTA will hold its school of instruction Tuesday, Sept. 20, at 10 a.m. in the Gordon Street Presbyterian Church. Mrs. J. L. Heard, second vice president, Atlanta Council of PTA, will be the instructor.

A covered dish luncheon will be served following the meeting.

A Word to Weekend Shoppers: Watch Out for Antique Sales

By MORTON YARMON

NEW YORK—(WNS)—If yours is the kind of family that spends weekends driving along country roads, here's a word of caution: watch out when you buy antique furniture. Otherwise, the trophy you bag at that quaint little shop may turn into a white elephant.

Buying an antique calls for all the usual cautions directed at the shopper—and then some. And that's particularly so if the antique you get is a piece of furniture for it must be as usable as it's decorative.

Once you come across a likely piece of furniture for your home, and the price seems right, it should undergo several tests before you finally open your wallet.

Chairs demand the most careful testing for they get the most use of all pieces of furniture. Most important, make sure that the chair you're considering is comfortable to sit in for that's what it will be there for. Often the legs will prove to have been cut down, so sit on it to make sure it is the correct height—and that the seat is ample. Place the chair on a level floor to check that the legs are all of equal height and that the bottoms of the feet are even.

Next, is the chair tight? That can be checked by placing your knee on the front of the seat and pushing against the back. Looseness will be readily apparent. If the chair isn't too heavy, you might try the upside-down test, lifting the chair and putting pressure against the opposite legs.

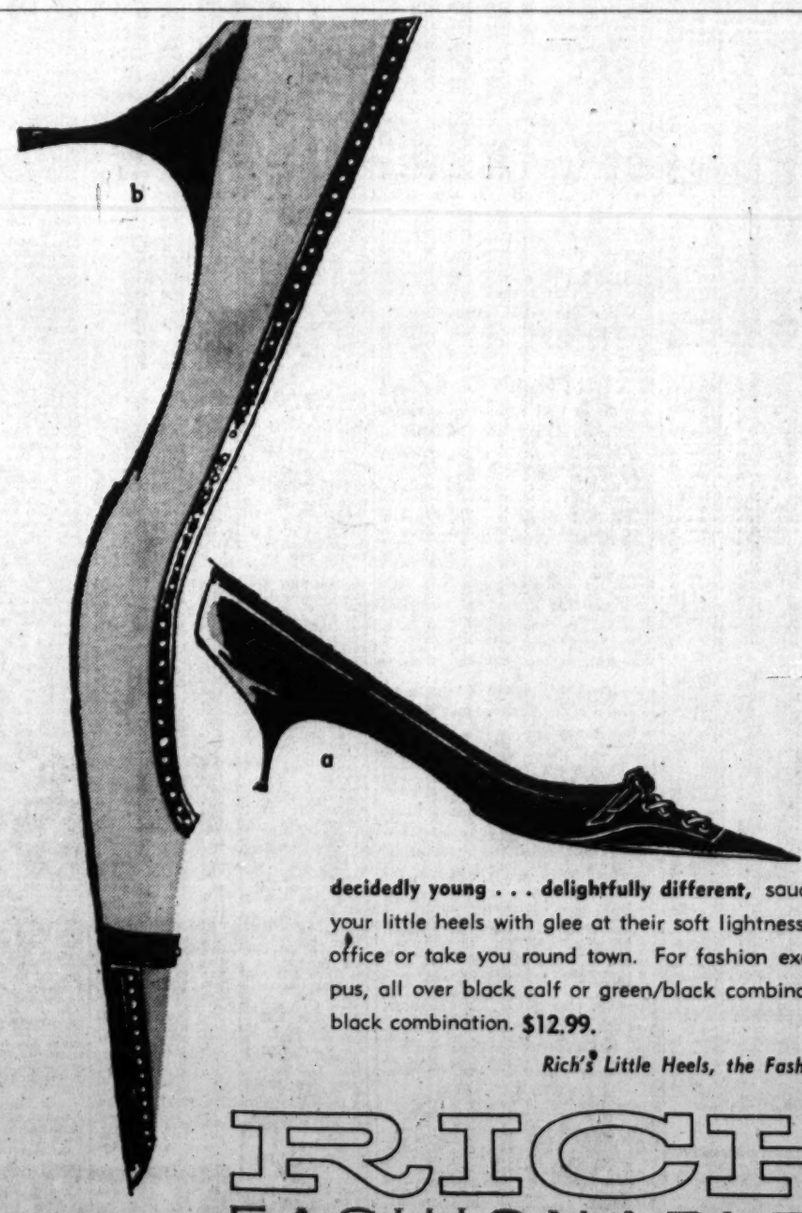

An upholstered chair brings on additional questions. First, tap the seat. If it sags, the springs probably are worn out. Then check to see that the padding is evenly distributed, not lumpy. Of course, you'll check the upholstery itself for signs of wear and for stains.

As with a light chair, you can give a light table the upside-down test to check the tightness of the legs. If the table is too heavy for this, place pressure with the hands against opposite corners. Do the same with any "case" pieces you are considering—that's cabinet maker jargon for boxlike chests, desks, and the like. This will reveal any leg weakness.

Case pieces call for a good deal of attention to the drawers. Remove each drawer from the frame, then see to it that it moves in and out freely, and that it fits evenly. Check the drawer guides, and the blocks or stops at the rear. Look for dust panels between the drawers. Check the joints.

Hard-to-get-at hidden parts are just as important as parts seen right off. In searching for cracks, for example, don't overlook either the bottom of each drawer or the paneling at the back of the chest or cabinet.

The wood should be checked on every piece you consider. Naturally you wouldn't want to spoil the outward appearance, but every piece has a hidden area on which you can make your test. Scrape off a small patch of finish or use some paint remover and inspect the wood. Close examination of the edge of a table top or drawer front will show if the piece is veneered or of solid construction.

Stock Prices Idle Near 1960 Lows

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market failed to rally, as it has previously, when it made a close approach to its 1960 lows. Prices were mixed with a slight downtrend. Trading was quiet.

Every prior decline to the level of the "triple bottom" formed by the average in March, May and July was followed by a vigorous move lasting for weeks.

This should have been the day for a sharp rebound if precedent was to be followed.

The Dow Jones industrial average declined .51 to 602.18.

UPTREND FAILS

The market was mixed at the start. A slight move upward evaporated. It was succeeded by a slow drift to the downside.

Analysts said the lazy, hesitant action of the market portended no good. Some predicted a further and stiffer test of the 1960 lows to determine whether there will be a breakthrough on the downside or still another snapback.

The advance by rails was the cheeriest item in a drab day. This was based solidly on government approval of the merger of Lackawanna with Erie, the biggest railroad deal of the century. Lackawanna rose a point and Erie 1⅛. Enough of the other carriers posted small gains to give the railroad average a lift, although many major roads were unchanged and some declined.

DECLINE WIDE

Autos, steels, electronics and nonferrous metals were mostly lower. Chemicals and aircrafts were mixed.

Some of the volume leaders put there by large blocks, representing shifts in big portfolios.

Ronson, however, moved ahead on further talk of the company's prospects.

Collins Radio was affected by profit taking.

American Stock Exchange prices were generally lower.

Corporate bonds were lower.

CHICAGO (AP)—A few weak spots in corn and soybeans were exceptions to a slightly easier grain futures market on the Board of Trade. Fairly heavy liquidation took September corn and soybeans down about a cent. Brokers described this pressure as reflecting a little more urgency on the part of longs to sell out before trading in the contract ends next Wednesday.

'BUSINESS LAB'
HELPS JOE'S
SCHOOL WORK

IN SCHOOL, Joe had always liked his lab courses. Naturally he listens to the teacher's lectures, but what he enjoys most is learning for himself by doing. Now that he has become a newspaperboy, he has discovered another good "lab course."

HAVING a business of his own — which requires the keeping of books, the handling of accounts, and the banking of profits — has been of practical help in math. His ability to meet and talk with people has made him the top public speaker in his classes.

WHAT'S more, through this "business lab" he has learned so well the importance of being punctual that he wasn't tardy for a single class last year.
